Space and Place in Development Geography

Geographical perspectives on development in the 21st century

Edited by
Gery Nijenhuis,
Annelet Broekhuis
and Guus van Westen

Dutch University Press
Contents

Introduction
Annelet Broekhuis, Gery Nijenhuis en Guus van Westen 7

1 Global networks and local developments: Agendas for development geography
Anthony Bebbington 15

2 The ‘new geography of development’ and the neoliberal paradigm of economic globalization: A critical assessment
Milan Titus 31

3 Development geography at the crossroads of livelihood and globalisation
Leo de Haan and Annelies Zoomers 49

4 The territorialisation of rural Thailand: Between localism, nationalism and globalism
Mogens Buch-Hansen 65

5 Cooperation and conflict in the transition to sustainable development: Alliances in urban solid waste management
Isa Baud, Stelios Grafakos and Johan Post 81

6 Contrasting experiences in the privatization of solid waste collection in Accra, Nairobi and Hyderabad
Johan Post, Nelson Obirih-Opareh, Moses Ikiara and Jaap Broekema 101

7 Wanting water: Popular politics in response to changing agency of water supply in a peripheral low-income area in Kano, Nigeria
Gunilla Andræ 123

8 Is government open to participation of the poor? Urban policies and politics in Bolivia
Aart Schalkwijk 139

9 Transnational capitalism and local transformation in Chile
Robert N. Gwynne 163
10 Rural transformation and its impact on rural households: The significance of space and place in La Laguna
Robine van Dooren

11 From 'safe haven' to 'refugee affected area': Impact of refugees and relief resources on local economy and livelihood in Ngara, Tanzania
Henk Huisman

12 Ironic detachments: Revisiting the Modernist Topos of the U.S.-Mexico borderlands
Olivier Kramsch