English in the World
Global Rules, Global Roles

Edited by Rani Rubdy and Mario Saraceni

continuum
LONDON • NEW YORK
Contents

About the Contributors 1
Introduction 5
Rani Rubdy and Mario Saraceni

Part I: Conceptualizing EIL 17
An Interview with Tom McArthur 21
Rani Rubdy and Mario Saraceni

Global Intelligibility and Local Diversity: Possibility or Paradox? 32
Jennifer Jenkins

English as a Lingua Franca in the Expanding Circle: What it Isn’t 40
Barbara Seidlhofer

Defining the ‘Successful Bilingual Speaker’ of English 51
Luke Prodromou

Which Model of English: Native-speaker, Nativized or Lingua Franca? 71
Andy Kirkpatrick

World Englishes or English as a Lingua Franca? A View from the Perspective of Non-Anglo Englishes 84
Peter K. W. Tan, Vincent B. Y. Ooi and Andy K. L. Chiang

Standard English in the World 95
Anthea Fraser Gupta

Part II: Pedagogical Implications of EIL 110
EIL Curriculum Development 114
Sandra Lee McKay

A Multi-dimensional Approach to Teaching English for the World 130
Brian Tomlinson
Contents

Teaching EIL – Teaching International or Intercultural English? What Teachers Should Know 151
Nicos Sifakis

Standard Englishes, Pedagogical Paradigms and their Conditions of (Im)possibility 169
T. Ruanni F. Tupas

English in the World does not mean English Everywhere: The Case for Multilingualism in the ELT/ESL Profession 186
Michael Joseph and Esther Ramani

An Interview with Suresh Canagarajah 200
Rani Rubdy and Mario Saraceni

Name Index 213
Subject Index 216