Literature and Philosophy
A Guide to Contemporary Debates

Edited by
David Rudrum
Contents

Acknowledgements ix
Notes on Contributors x

Introduction – Literature and Philosophy: The Contemporary Interface
David Rudrum 1

Part I Encounters with Literature in French Philosophy 9
1 First Lessons: Gilles Deleuze and the Concept of Literature
   Anthony Larson 13
2 ‘The Absence of Origin’: Beckett and Contemporary French Philosophy
   Derval Tubridy 24

Part II Encounters with Literature in Anglo-American Philosophy 37
3 The Pattern that Literature Makes: Davidson, Pragmatism, and the Reconstruction of the Literary
   Bryan Vescio 41
4 Autobiographical Memory: Wittgenstein, Davidson, and the ‘Descent into Ourselves’
   Garry L. Hagberg 53
5 What Can My Nonsense Tell Me About You?
   Brett Bourbon 66

Part III Encounters with Literature in German Philosophy 77
6 A Risky Business: Internal Time and Objective Time in Husserl and Woolf
   Ralph Strehle 81
7 The Poetics of Thinking
   Jennifer Anna Gosetti-Ferencei 92
8 Construction without Theory: Oblique Reflections on Walter Benjamin’s Goethe
   Richard J. Lane 114
Contents

Part IV Literature and Philosophy: The Question of Ethics

9 Liminal Agencies: Literature as Moral Philosophy
   Mary C. Rawlinson 129

10 Is Forgiveness Ever Possible At All?
   Rupert Read 142

Part V Reading Philosophy as Literature

11 Who is Speaking? Brodsky, Heidegger, Wittgenstein, and the Question of Genre
   Michael Eskin 163

12 Literary Potential: The Release of Criticism
   Andrew Benjamin 170

13 Gibberophobia: Philosophy, Fear, and the Plain Style
   Jonathan Rée 179

14 Philosophy's Metaphors: Dennett, Midgley, and Derrida
   Robert Eaglestone 194

15 Hearing Voices: A Dialogical Reading of Wittgenstein's
   Philosophical Investigations
   David Rudrum 204

Part VI Conclusion: Approaching the End

16 No Matter: Aesthetic Theory and the Self-annihilating Artwork
   Josh Cohen 221

17 Form, Reflection, Disclosure: Literary Aesthetics and Contemporary Criticism
   Simon Malpas 231

Index 243