Iris Murdoch: A Reassessment

Edited by

Anne Rowe
Senior Lecturer in English Literature, Kingston University
Contents

Acknowledgements ix
Notes on Contributors x
Notes on References and Abbreviations xiii
Preface xiv
Introduction: ‘A Large Hall of Reflection’
Anne Rowe 1

Part I Reinstating Theology 13

1 Reconsidering Iris Murdoch's Moral Philosophy and Theology
   Maria Antonaccio 15

2 ‘All the World Must be “Religious”’: Iris Murdoch’s Ontological Arguments
   Stephen Mulhall 23

3 Iris Murdoch’s Deconstructive Theology
   Suguna Ramanathan 35

Part II Reconsidering Moral Philosophy 45

4 Murdoch on the Impossibility of Moral Scepticism
   Edith Brugmans 47

5 The Ethics of Self-Concern
   Samantha Vice 60

6 Attention, Self and The Sovereignty of Good
   Christopher Mole 72

Part III Revisiting The Saint and the Artist 85

7 The Ascetic Impulse in Iris Murdoch's Thought
   Maria Antonaccio 87

8 The Curse of The Bell: The Ethics and Aesthetics of Narrative
   Bran Nicol 100
Contents

Part IV Rereading Literature 113

9 Saint Iris? Murdoch’s Place in the Modern Canon
   Nick Turner 115

10 Houses of Fiction: Iris Murdoch and Henry James
   Priscilla Martin 124

11 A Literary Foremother: Iris Murdoch and
   Carol Shields
   Alex Ramon 136

12 ‘Policemen in a Search Team’: Iris Murdoch’s
   The Black Prince and Ian McEwan’s Atonement
   Anne Rowe 148

Part V Renegotiating Gender, Sexuality and Feminism 161

13 Plato, Foucault and Beyond: Ethics, Beauty and Bisexuality in The Good Apprentice
   Tammy Grimshaw 163

14 Reassessing Iris Murdoch in the Light of Feminist Philosophy: Michèle Le Doeuff and the Philosophical Imaginary
   Marije Altorf 175

Part VI Reinvestigating Negative Capability 187

15 Oedipus, Peter Pan and Negative Capability: On Writing Iris Murdoch’s Life
   Peter J. Conradi 189

16 Alzheimer’s Amyloid Analogy: Disease Depicted
   through A Word Child
   Rivka Isaacson 204

Index 214