MASQUERADES
Disguise in Literature in English from the Middle Ages to the Present

Edited by
Jesús López-Peláez Casellas
David Malcolm
and Pilar Sánchez Calle
Contents

Introduction 7

DISGUISE AND POWER

JOHN SIMONS, Working Knights: Labour as Disguise in the Middle English Romances 19
JESÚS LÓPEZ-PELÁEZ CASELLAS, "And dressed myself in such humility": Honour and Disguising in Shakespeare's 1Henry IV 38
DIANA PESCHIER, Gliding Jesuits: Masters of Disguise and a Covert Threat to Protestant Patriarchal Society in Mid-Nineteenth-Century England 55
CAROLYN MAIBOR, The Empire’s New Clothes: Kipling’s Chameleonic Kim and White Privilege 68

DISGUISE AND IDENTITY

J.-A. GEORGE, The Father of Lies: The Figure of the Vice in Early English Drama 85
DAVID MALCOLM, "It's a wise conspirator that knows his own name": Disguise, Narration and Ambiguity in John Buchan's Espionage Fiction 97
MARY LAZAR, Disguise in the Life and Work of Jerzy Kosinski 111

DISGUISE AND MADNESS

DIANE SIMMONS, "Truth Is for Tailors": The Aristocratic Mask as Narcissistic Disorder in the Works and Life of Isak Dinesen 131
CARMEN MÉNDEZ GARCÍA, "You my body, and my mind, one of these will go": Madness as Disguise in Samuel Beckett’s Murphy and Endgame 145
ESTHER SÁNCHEZ-PARDO, Schizophrenic Modernisms: Plath’s and de Chirico’s Drama of the Psyche 160
DISGUISE AND GENDER

ROBIN MISZKOLCZE, Holy Motives and Loyal Bodies: Cross-Dressed Female Seafarers in Early American Popular Literature 177

LISA FLETCHER, “Mere Costumery”? Georgette Heyer’s Cross-Dressing Novels 196

PILAR SÁNCHEZ CALLE, Disguising Race, Disguising the Self: Jessie Fauset’s Plum Bun 213

GEMMA LÓPEZ SÁNCHEZ, “O my America, my newfound land”: Re-Discovering Gender Costumes in Angela Carter’s The Passion of the New Eve 228