Contents

Illustrations xi
Chronology of Events xiii

Chapter 1. Introduction 1
The Middle Ages: A Time of Ignorance and Barbarism? Or a Period of Striking Innovation? 2
Religion and Science among the Greeks prior to the Emergence of Christianity 13
The Propagation of Science 26
Brief Descriptions of Chapters 2–8 30

Chapter 2. Aristotle and the Beginnings of Two Thousand Years of Natural Philosophy 33
Life 33
Works 34
Achievements 37
Aristotle’s Cosmos and Natural Philosophy 41
The Scope of Natural Philosophy 47
Chapter 3. Science and Natural Philosophy in the Roman Empire

The Pre-Socratic Natural Philosophers

The Emergence and Development of the Sciences in the Greek World

The Life Sciences

The Exact Sciences

Greek Science in the Roman Empire to the Sixth Century A.D.

Chapter 4. The First Six Centuries of Christianity: Christian Attitudes toward Greek Philosophy and Science

The Mystery Religions and Astrology

The Triumph of Christianity in the Roman World

Christianity and the Pagan Intellectual World

Commentaries on Genesis (Hexameral Treatises): The Christian Understanding of the Creation of the World

Chapter 5. The Emergence of a New Europe after the Barbarian Invasions

The Latin Encyclopedists

Western Europe at Its Nadir

The New Europe in the Twelfth Century

The Beginnings of the New Natural Philosophy

Chapter 6. The Medieval Universities and the Impact of Aristotle’s Natural Philosophy

The Translations of Aristotle’s Books on Natural Philosophy

Universities in the Middle Ages

Types of Literature in Natural Philosophy

The Relations between Natural Philosophy and Theology in the Thirteenth Century

Is Theology a Science?
Contents

Chapter 7. The Interrelations between Natural Philosophy and Theology in the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Centuries

- The Influence of the Condemnation of 1277 on Natural Philosophy
- The Impact of Religion on Natural Philosophy in the Middle Ages
- The Role of Natural Philosophy in Theology
- The Significance and Meaning of the Interaction between Natural Philosophy and Theology

Chapter 8. Relations between Science and Religion in the Byzantine Empire, the World of Islam, and the Latin West

- The Byzantine Empire
- Islam
- The Latin West

Primary Sources

1. Roger Bacon, The "Opus Majus" of Roger Bacon
2. Giles of Rome, Errores Philosophorum
3. Saint Bonaventure, On the Eternity of the World (De Aeternitate Mundi)
4. Saint Thomas Aquinas, On the Eternity of the World (De Aeternitate Mundi)
5. Albert of Saxony, Questions on [Aristotle's] On the Heavens

Annotated Bibliography

Index