The Body and Desire in Contemporary Irish Poetry

Edited by
IRENE GILSENAN NORDIN
Dalarna University College, Sweden
Contents

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS ix

INTRODUCTION: Re-Mapping the Landscape: The Body as Agent of Political, Social and Spiritual Empowerment in Contemporary Irish Poetry 1
Irene Gilsenan Nordin

PART I THE BODY POLITIC: TERRITORIAL RECONFIGURATION AND DESIRE

1 Abject State: Waste and the Exile of the Body in Northern Irish Poetry 21
Scott Brewster

2 History’s Impasse: Journey, Haunt and Trace in the Poetry of Medbh McGuckian 40
Eluned Summers-Bremner

3 Thomas Kinsella’s ‘Local Knowledge’ 55
Robert Brazeau

4 The Body as Ethical Synecdoche in the Writing of Seamus Heaney 79
Eugene O’Brien

PART II THE FEMALE BODY: WOMEN’S SEXUAL, MATERNAL, AGEING BODIES AND DESIRE

5 ‘Words We Can Grow Old and Die In’: Earth Mother and Ageing Mother in Eavan Boland’s Poetry 103
Veronica House
PART III THE EXISTENTIAL BODY: THE SELF AND DESIRE FOR THE OTHER

8 ‘Like a Wished-For Body’: Dialogues of Desire in the Poetry of Medbh McGuckian 163
   Elin Holmsten

9 ‘Enough / is Enough’: Suffering and Desire in the Poetry of Thomas Kinsella 182
   Lucy Collins

10 Medbh McGuckian and the Poetics of Mourning 197
   Helen Blakeman

11 Touch and Go: Seamus Heaney and the Transcendence of the Aesthetic 213
   Charles I. Armstrong

12 ‘Betwixt and Between’: The Body as Liminal Threshold in the Poetry of Eiléan Ní Chuillíneáin 226
   Irene Gilsenan Nordin

CONTRIBUTORS 244

INDEX 247