Changing Roles of NGOs in the Creation, Storage, and Dissemination of Information in Developing Countries

Edited by Steve W. Witt

K · G · Saur München 2006
Contents

Foreword ................................................................................................................................. 7
  Steve W. Witt

The Warning Voice – NGOs and Information ................................................................. 9
  Lynne Rudasill

The Permanence of Smoke: A Challenge to Research Libraries to Showcase and Preserve the Work of NGOs Serving Developing Countries .............................................................. 23
  Susan Bennett White

Working in Partnership to Build Knowledge Societies ................................................ 45
  Sara Harrity

Information for Action: The Approach Used by NGOs to Foster and Strengthen Civic Life: A Case Study from Argentina ................................................................................................. 61
  Norma Palomino

NGOs and the Egyptian Information Society:
New Partnerships, New Roles .......................................................................................... 77
  Rehab Ouf
  Sohair Fahmy Wastawy

NGOs, ICTs and Information Dissemination in Asia and Oceania ................................ 99
  Elizabeth Reade-Fong
  Gary E. Gorman

The NGO Response to HIV/AIDS Information Provision in Zambia ..................... 111
  Christine W. Kanyemgo

Information System for NGO Libraries in Pakistan:
A Proposed Model for Organizing the Grey Literature ................................................ 127
  Syed Attaullah Shah
  Humera Ilhaq

Notes ...................................................................................................................................... 145