A Matter of Faith

RELIGION IN THE 2004 PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

David E. Campbell
Editor

BROOKINGS INSTITUTION PRESS
Washington, D.C.
Contents

Acknowledgments vii

1 The 2004 Election: A Matter of Faith? 1
   David E. Campbell

Part One
The Big Picture

2 How the Faithful Voted: Religious Communities and the Presidential Vote 15
   John C. Green, Lyman A. Kellstedt, Corwin E. Smidt, and James L. Guth

3 Faithful Divides: Party Elites and Religion 37
   John C. Green and John S. Jackson

Part Two
The Moral Values Election?

4 Moral Values: Media, Voters, and Candidate Strategy 65
   D. Sunshine Hillygus

5 Evangelicals and Moral Values 80
   Scott Keeter
Part Three

Mobilizing the Faithful

6 Microtargeting and the Instrumental Mobilization of Religious Conservatives
   J. Quin Monson and J. Baxter Oliphant
   95

7 The Case of Bush's Reelection: Did Gay Marriage Do It?
   David E. Campbell and J. Quin Monson
   120

8 Stem Cell Research
   Barbara Norrander and Jan Norrander
   142

Part Four

Religious Constituencies

   J. Matthew Wilson
   163

   Geoffrey C. Layman and Laura S. Hussey
   180

11 Latinos and Religion
   David L. Leal
   199

12 The Black Church: Maintaining Old Coalitions
   Eric L. McDaniel
   215

13 A Gentle Stream or a "River Glorious"? The Religious Left in the 2004 Election
   Lyman A. Kellstedt, Corwin E. Smidt, John C. Green, and James L. Guth
   232

Part Five

Conclusion

14 From Event to Theory: A Summary Analysis
   David C. Leege
   259

References
275

Contributors
295

Index
297