reading science fiction

edited by

james gunn, marleen s. barr, and

matthew candelaria
contents

notes on contributors  ix

introduction  1

part i mapping science fiction introduction to part i  11

1 defining science fiction eric s. rabkin  15

2 what is science fiction—and how it grew
h. bruce franklin  23

3 narrative strategies in science fiction
brian stableford  33

4 there is no such thing as science fiction sherryl vint and mark bould  43

part ii science fiction and popular culture introduction to part ii  55

5 science fiction movies: the feud of eye and idea george zebrowski  57

6 the feedback loop
michael cassutt  72

7 computers in science fiction
brooks landon  85
contents

8 cross-fertilization or coincidence? science fiction and videogames orson scott card  96

part iii  theoretical approaches to science fiction introduction to part iii  109

9 gender is a problem that can be solved jane donawerth  111

10 marxism and science fiction
carl freedman  120

11 reading science fiction with postcolonial theory
matthew candelaria  133

12 encountering international science fiction through a latin american lens roberto de sousa causo  142 part iv  reading science fiction in the classroom introduction to part iv  157

13 reading science fiction as science fiction
james gunn  159

14 reading joanna russ in context: science, utopia and postmodernity jeanne cortiel  168

15 reading science fiction’s interdisciplinary conversation with science and technology studies
r. doug davis and lisa yaszek  181 part v  science fiction and diverse disciplines introduction to part v  195

16 neuroscience fiction redux
joseph d. miller  199

17 physics through science fiction gregory benford  212
contents

18 science fiction and biology pamela sargent  219

19 science fiction and philosophy
  james gunn  227

20 science fiction and the internet bruce sterling  235

the reading science fiction blog marleen s. barr  244

bibliography  253

index  263