James Hogg and the Literary Marketplace
Scottish Romanticism and the Working-Class Author

Edited by SHARON ALKER
Whitman College, USA

and

HOLLY FAITH NELSON
Trinity Western University, Canada
Contents

List of Figures vii
Notes on Contributors ix
Preface xiii
Acknowledgements xv

Scottish Romanticism and the Working-Class Author: An Introduction 1
Sharon Alker and Holly Faith Nelson

1 Hogg and Scott's 'First Meeting' and the Politics of Literary Friendship 21
Peter Garside

2 National Discourse or Discord? Transformations of The Family Legend by Baillie, Scott, and Hogg 43
Meiko O'Halloran

3 Fanaticism and Enlightenment in Confessions of a Justified Sinner 57
Ian Duncan

4 Robert Wringhim's Solitude 71
Gillian Hughes

5 The Labourer and Literary Tradition: James Hogg's Early Reading and Its Impact on Him as a Writer 81
H.B. de Groot

6 James Hogg and the Authority of Tradition 93
Suzanne Gilbert

7 James Hogg: Scottish Romanticism, Song, and the Public Sphere 111
Murray Pittock

8 Singing 'more old songs than ever ploughman could': The Songs of James Hogg and Robert Burns in the Musical Marketplace 123
Kirsteen McCue

9 Hogg's Bardic Epic: Queen Hynde and Macpherson's Ossian 139
Douglas S. Mack

10 The Perilous Castle(s) of The Three Perils of Man 157
Graham Tulloch