Table of Contents

Acknowledgements 7

1. Introduction: Diaspora, Home, Writing 9

Part One: Black British Perspectives

2. From Black Britain to the Caribbean: The Return of the (Im)Migrant in Caryl Phillips's A State of Independence 37

3. Exile, History, and Migrancy in Jamal Mahjoub's The Carrier 57

4. The Hybridization of Europe in Mike Phillips's A Shadow of Myself 79

5. The Politics of Self-Making in Post-Colonial Fiction: The Bildung of Pretty Bobby in Hari Kunzru's The Impressionist 93

6. Narratives of Diaspora and Trauma in Kamila Shamsie's Salt and Saffron 109

Part Two: Diasporic Americans

8. The Hybridity of the Asian American Subject in Cynthia Kadohata’s The Floating World 147

9. Migration and Diaspora in Ana Castillo’s Sapogonia 163

10. Writing Diasporic Identity in Diana Abu-Jaber’s Crescent 181

11. Transnational Travel in Bharati Mukherjee’s Desirable Daughters 199

12. Home, Transnationalism, and Transformation in Bharati Mukherjee’s Leave It to Me 213

13. Conclusion 229

Bibliography 233

Index 245