Narrative Identity in English Language Teaching
Exploring Teacher Interviews in Japanese and English

Patrick Kiernan
Meiji University, Tokyo, Japan
Contents

List of Figures
- x

List of Tables
- xi

List of Extracts
- xii

Preface
- xiii

Acknowledgements
- xv

Abbreviations
- xvii

1. Introduction
1.1 Introduction
1.2 From pedagogic description to identity
1.3 Identity and language teachers
1.4 Teaching English in Japan
1.5 Exploring identity
1.6 Methodological, theoretical and practical aims
1.7 Overview
1.8 Conclusion

2. Narrative and Conversation Teaching
2.1 Introduction
2.2 Story grammars: an introspective approach
2.3 ‘Like, what happened?’ Eliciting narrative
2.4 ‘You wanna hear my story?’ Narratives in conversation
2.5 Looking at genre
2.6 Storytelling in everyday talk, and borderline narratives
2.7 Performance narratives and dramatic features
2.8 Narrative tasks
2.9 Learner narratives
2.10 Encouraging interaction in tasks
2.11 Gender in Japanese learner narratives
2.12 Learner narratives as cultural exempla
2.13 Conclusion

3. Identity Matters
3.1 Introduction
3.2 Exploring identity
3.3 Dimensions of identity 40
3.4 Psychological research and autobiographical memory 44
3.5 Identity in Japan 48
3.6 Identity in Japanese 50
3.7 Conclusion 53

4. The Narrative Research Interview 54
4.1 Introduction 54
4.2 Moving beyond the Observer's Paradox 55
4.3 The narrative interview as qualitative research 58
4.4 Project overview 64
4.5 Modelling organisation in the narrative interview 69
4.6 Conclusion 85

5. Spatio-temporal Focus and the Construction of Identity 86
5.1 Introduction 86
5.2 Bakhtin's chronotope 88
5.3 Significant moment (1) – The Interview 89
5.4 Significant moment (2) – Abnormal Communication 94
5.5 Significant events (1) – The Boat Trip 97
5.6 Significant events (2) – Foreigners Could Understand Me 102
5.7 Significant period – Turning Japanese 104
5.8 Lessons over time – Finding Strength in Teaching 108
5.9 Conclusion 111

6. Evaluation and Identity 113
6.1 Introduction 113
6.2 Approaches to exploring evaluation 115
6.3 Dialogic contraction – A Half-half Child 121
6.4 Dialogic expansion – The Tennis Player 125
6.5 The self through others – Five Precious Hours 131
6.6 The self as outsider – The Foreigners You Know ... 135
6.7 The Other and the self – The Riff-raff 137
6.8 The Other as the self – An Impressive Speech 140
6.9 Conclusion 143

7. Professional Identity in ELT 145
7.1 Introduction 145
7.2 Identity research in language teaching 146
7.3 Why English teaching? 150
7.4 Becoming an English teacher in Japan – A Logical Choice 152
7.5 Becoming an English teacher in Japan – You Must be Crazy! 156
7.6 Becoming a professional (1) – The Difficulty of Teaching 158
7.7 Becoming a professional (2) – An Ambitious Career 162
7.8 Getting involved – Diversity or Swimming Instructor 165
7.9 Maturity and reward – A Moment 169
7.10 Conclusion 172

8. Conclusion 174
  8.1 Introduction 174
  8.2 A linguistic approach to research interviews 175
  8.3 Teacher research and ELT 179
  8.4 Cross-linguistic narrative analysis 181
  8.5 Implications and applications for ELT pedagogy 183
  8.6 Proposals for future research 189
  8.7 Conclusion 191

References 193

Author Index 207

Subject Index 211