Table of Contents

Acknowledgements vii
Introduction: Rites of Passage in Postcolonial Women's Writing ix

AFRICA

A State of Transition: Connotations of Pregnancy in Yvonne Vera's Without a Name and Butterfly Burning
KATRIN BERNDT 3

Nothing Like Motherhood: Barrenness, Abortion, and Infanticide in Yvonne Vera's Fiction
HELEN COUSINS 21

Mourning and the Angel of History: Yvonne Vera's The Stone Virgins
ALEXANDRA W. SCHULTHEIS 41

Women Writing AIDS in South Africa and Zimbabwe
LIZZY ATTREE 65

AMERICAS

Reclaiming Ritual: Feminist and Postcolonial Perspectives in Two Plays by Victoria Nalani Kneubuhl
KIMBERLY M. JEW 93

"There are no harmless ways to remake oneself": Re-Invention of Self in Bharati Mukherjee
POLINA MACKAY 113
ASIA

Mourning and Motherhood:
Transforming Loss in Representations of Adivasi Mothers in Mahasweta Devi’s Short Stories

LOPAMUDRA BASU 129

Intimations of Metamodernism
Innocence and Experience in Arundhati Roy’s The God of Small Things:

ALEXANDRA DUMITRESCU 149

“No one knows that I have magic / In my brain”:
Jean Arasanayagam’s Writing and Re-writing as Rites of Passage

SHARANYA JAYAWICKRAMA 167

AUSTRALIA

“A Ticket to Nowhere”:
Coming-of-Age in Two Twentieth-Century Indigenous Australian Memoirs

GAY BREYLEY 187

Transitions:
Rites of Passage as Border Crossings in Contemporary Australian Women’s Fiction

RACHEL SLATER 207

CROSS-CONTINENTAL

Muddy Death:
Fate, Femininity, and Mourning in Jean Rhys’s Good Morning, Midnight

JESSICA GILDERSLIEVE 227

Coming-of-Age, Coming to Mourning:
Purple Hibiscus, Lucy, and Nervous Conditions

TANYA DALZIEL 245

Menstrual Metamorphosis and “the foreign country of femaleness”:
Kate Grenville and Jamaica Kincaid

ANNA GETHING 267

Words Against Death:
Rites of Passage in Ana Castillo’s So Far From God and Patricia Grace’s Baby No-Eyes

IRENE VISSER 283

Notes on Contributors 301