Community Politics and the Peace Process in Contemporary Northern Irish Drama
Contents

Acknowledgements 9

Introduction 11

CHAPTER 1
Political Purpose and Dramatic Alienation:
Patrick Galvin’s We Do It for Love and Tinderbox Theatre
Company’s Production of Convictions 43

CHAPTER 2
History Plays:
Representations of the United Irishmen in Northern Star
by Stewart Parker and Tearing the Loom by Gary Mitchell 91

CHAPTER 3
Remodelling Mythologies:
Field Day’s ‘Fifth Province’ and Frank McGuinness’s Ulster Plays 131

CHAPTER 4
Caricaturing Iconographies
or Puppet Masters with Broken Strings in Tim Loane’s
To Be Sure or How to Count Chickens When They Come Home to Roost and Caught Red Handed or How to Prune a Whin Bush 167

CHAPTER 5
The Politics of the Peace Process and Theatrical Imagination:
Sole Purpose Productions 203
CHAPTER 6

Foucault's Looking Glass and Tongues of Flames:
Pentecost, After Easter, Ourselves Alone, ‘The Wedding
Community Play’, Massive 225

Conclusion 267

Bibliography 279

Index 291