THE BLACK IMAGINATION

SCIENCE FICTION, FUTURISM AND THE SPECULATIVE

Edited by Sandra Jackson and Julie E. Moody-Freeman

PETER LANG
New York • Washington, D.C./Baltimore • Bern
Frankfurt • Berlin • Brussels • Vienna • Oxford
Contents

INTRODUCTION

The Black Imagination and the Genres: Science Fiction, Futurism and the Speculative
SANDRA JACKSON & JULIE MOODY-FREEMAN

1. The Future of Race in Afro-Futurist Fiction
   MADHU DUBEY

2. Brave Black Worlds: Black Superheroes as Science Fiction Ciphers
   ADILIFU NAMA

3. "Explorers"— Star Trek: Deep Space Nine
   MICHEAL CHARLES POUNDS

4. Connecting to a Future Community: Storytelling, the Database, and Nalo Hopkinson's Midnight Robber
   ALISA K. BRAITHWAITE

5. Science Fiction, Feminism and Blackness: The Multifaceted Import of Octavia Butler's Work
   SHANNON GIBNEY

1
15
32
47
81
100
6. The Absence of Meat in Oankali Dietary Philosophy: An Eco-Feminist-Vegan Analysis of Octavia Butler's Dawn
   AMIE BREEZE HARPER

7. Speculative Poetics: Audre Lorde as Prologue for Queer Black Futurism
   ALEXIS PAULINE GUMBS

8. "Why white people feel they got to mark us?": Bodily Inscription, Healing and Maternal "Plots of Power" in Jewelle Gomez's "Louisiana 1850"
   MARIE-LUISE Loeffler

   BRANDON KEMPNER

    DEBBIE OLSON

11. Towards a Black Science Fiction Cinema: The Slippery Signifier of Race and the Films of Will Smith
    STEPHANIE LARRIEUX

Contributors

Index