

Early Modern Women in Conversation

Katherine R. Larson

palgrave
macmillan

Contents

Acknowledgements	viii
List of Abbreviations	xi
Note on Texts and References	xii
Introduction
Beyond the Humanist Dialogue: The Textual Conversations of Early Modern Women	1
Part I Gendering Conversation and Space in Early Modern England
1 'Intercourses of Friendship': Gender, Conversation, and Social Performance	19
2 Markets and Thresholds: Conversation as Spatial Practice	39
Part II The Sidneys in Conversation
3 Speaking to God with 'a cloven tongue': The Sidney-Pembroke Psalter	63
4 Conversational Games and the Articulation of Desire in Mary Wroth's Love's Victory and Shakespeare's Love's Labour's Lost	89
Part III The Cavendishes in Conversation
5 'The language of friendship and conversation': Jane Cavendish and Elizabeth Brackley's Conversational Alliances	113
6 The Civil Conversations of Margaret Cavendish and Ben Jonson	138
Conclusion	166
Notes	171
Works Cited	185
Index	205