kazuo ishiguro
new critical visions of the novels

edited by
sebastian groes and barry lewis

palgrave
macmillan
contents

list of illustrations viii
list of abbreviations ix

preface x
brian w. shaffer

acknowledgements xiii

contributors xiv

introduction: 'it's good manners, really' – kazuo ishiguro and the ethics of empathy
sebastian groes and barry lewis 1

part i critical overviews

1. kazuo ishiguro's not-too-late modernism patricia waugh 13

2. the pedagogics of liminality: rites of passage in the work of kazuo ishiguro
   victor sage 31

3. lost and found: on the japanese translations
   of kazuo ishiguro
   motoyuki shibata 46

4. 'one word from you could alter the course of everything':
   discourse and identity in kazuo ishiguro's fiction krystyna stamirowska 54
part ii  the early, ‘japanese’, works

5. ‘putting one’s convictions to the test’: kazuo ishiguro’s an artist of the floating world in japan motoko sugano  69

6. ‘cemeteries are no places for young people’: children and trauma in the early novels of kazuo ishiguro
caroline bennett  82

part iii  the remains of the day

7. ‘i can’t even say i made my own mistakes‘:
the ethics of genre in kazuo ishiguro’s the remains of the day
meghan marie hammond  95

8. novelistic practice and ethical philosophy in kazuo ishiguro’s the remains of the day and never let me go
lydia r. cooper  106

9. kazuo ishiguro’s the remains of the day: working through england’s traumatic past as a critique of thatcherism
christine berberich  118

part iv  the unconsoled

10. into the labyrinth: kazuo ishiguro’s surrealist
poetics in the unconsoled jeannette baxter  133

11. ‘waiting for the performance to begin’: kazuo ishiguro’s musical imagination in the
unconsoled and nocturnes
gerry smyth  144

12. ‘into ever stranger territories’: kazuo ishiguro’s the unconsoled and minor literature tim jarvis  157
part v  when we were orphans

13. ‘in the end it has to shatter’: the ironic doubleness of kazuo ishiguro’s when we were orphans christopher ringrose  171

14. ‘shanghaied’ into service: double binds in when we were orphans alyn webley  184

part vi  never let me go

15. the concertina effect: unfolding kazuo ishiguro’s never let me go barry lewis  199

16. ‘something of a lost corner’: kazuo ishiguro’s landscapes of memory and east anglia in never let me go
   sebastian groes  211

17. ‘this is what we’re supposed to be doing, isn’t it?’: scientific discourse in kazuo ishiguro’s never let me go liani lochner  225

18. kazuo ishiguro’s never let me go and ‘outsider science fiction’ andy sawyer  236

   the new seriousness: kazuo ishiguro in conversation with sebastian groes  247

bibliography 265
index 280