Charles Robert Maturin and the haunting of Irish Romantic fiction

Christina Morin

Manchester University Press
Manchester and New York distributed in the United States exclusively by Palgrave Macmillan
Contents

List of illustrations vi
Acknowledgements vii
Chronology of Maturin's life ix

Introduction: Spectres of Maturin; or, the ghosts of Irish Romantic fiction 1

1 Reviving Maturin: the life and works 21
2 Communing with the dead: the medium and media of Fatal revenge 33
3 Conjuring Glorvina: The wild Irish boy and the national tale 58
4 Witnessing the past: the textual ruins of The Milesian chief 83
5 Narrating history: the burden of words in Women; or pour et contre 106
6 Paratextual possession: rereading Melmoth the wanderer 129
7 Rethinking Scott's revolution: The Albigenses as historical novel 154

Conclusion: Room for more: the future for Maturin research 177

Bibliography 189
Index 203