Andrzej Diniejko

The Condition of England Debate in English Fiction

From William Godwin’s Caleb Williams
to Zadie Smith’s White Teeth

Uniwersytet Warszawski
Warszawa 2008
Contents

Preface .................................................................................................................. 9

Chapter One Theoretical Assumptions ................................................................. 14
   I Narrative Fiction and Social Reality ................................................................. 14
   II The Novel as a Repository of Social Conscience ........................................... 16
   III The Condition of England as Social Discourse ............................................. 21

Chapter Two The Condition of England Debate in History ................................. 30
   I Social Consequences of the Industrial Revolution in Early Victorian England ......................................................... 30
   II Social Change in the Second Half of the 19th Century. The Success of the Middle-class Spirit .............................................. 44
   III Towards a Welfare Society, 1900-1950 .......................................................... 52
   IV Affluence, Consumerism, De-industrialisation, Devolution and Multiculturalism, 1950-to date ................................................. 58

Chapter Three The Origins and Early Development of the Condition of England Debate .............................................................................................................. 65
   I The Jacobin Novels and William Godwin’s Caleb Williams ......................... 66
   II The Condition of England Debate in Jane Austen’s Mansfield Park .......... 69
   III Thomas Carlyle and the Origin of the Condition of England Question ........ 74
   IV Benjamin Disraeli and the Idea of “Two Nations” ......................................... 80
   V The Early Female Voice in the Condition of England Debate ..................... 90

Chapter Four Concern for the Condition of England in the Mid Victorian Period ....................................................................................................................... 108
   I Charles Dickens as a Social Commentator ...................................................... 108
   II Charles Kingsley’s Commitment to Social Reform ....................................... 125
   III George Eliot’s Concern with Social Reform and Radicalism .................... 130
   IV Anthony Trollope and the Dilemmas of the Victorian Compromise ............ 138
Chapter Five The Revival of the Condition of England Debate in the Late Victorian Period ........................................ 144
   I  Between Realism and Naturalism: Slum Fiction ..................... 144
   II Between Naturalism and Modernism: the New Woman Fiction .... 148
   III The Condition of Man and the Condition of England in Thomas Hardy's Novels .......................................... 151
   IV Perception of England's Dispossessed in the Novels of George Gissing and George Moore ............................... 156

Chapter Six The Condition of England Debate in the Modern Era .. 165
   I The Condition of England Debate in the Edwardian Period ........ 165
   II The Condition of England Debate Between the Two World Wars... 173
   III Postwar 'Class-conscious' Fiction ................................... 190
   IV The Condition of England Debate in the Postmodern and Postcolonial Period .............................................. 198

Conclusion ................................................................. 224
Streszczenie ............................................................. 228
Timeline ................................................................. 234
Bibliography ............................................................ 243
Index ................................................................. 257