CONTENTS

Acknowledgments xiii

Introduction: In Hir Corages: Chaucer and the Animal Real 1
Carolynn Van Dyke

Part I The Natural Creature

1. Among All Beasts: Affective Naturalism in Late Medieval England 13
Aranye Fradenburg

2. Feathering the Text 33
Carol Freeman

3. Shrews, Rats, and a Polecat in “The Pardoner’s Tale” 49
Sandy Feinstein and Neal Woodman

Part II Animal Lessons

4. Chaucer’s Chicks: Feminism and Falconry in “The Knight’s Tale,” “The Squire’s Tale,” and The Parliament of Fowls 69
Sara Gutmann

5. Foiled by Fowl: The Squire’s Peregrine Falcon and the Franklin’s Dorigen 85
Lorraine Kochanske Stock

6. That Which Chargeth Not to Say: Animal Imagery in Troilus and Criseyde 101
Carolynn Van Dyke

Part III Becoming-Animal

7. Avian Hybridity in “The Squire’s Tale”: Uses of Anthropomorphism 115
Sara Deutsch Schotland
8. Reimagining Natural Order in “The Wife of Bath’s Prologue”
Laura Wang

Christopher Roman

Part IV  Contested Boundaries

10. Animal Agency, the Black Knight, and the Hart in The Book of the Duchess
Ryan R. Judkins

11. “A Beest May Al His Lust Fulfille”: Naturalizing Chivalric Violence in Chaucer’s “Knight’s Tale”
Jeremy Withers

Karl Steel

Part V  Cross-Species Discourse

13. Chaucer’s Chauntecleer and Animal Morality
Megan Palmer Browne

14. Talking Animals, Debating Beasts
Wendy A. Matlock

15. Species or Specious? Authorial Choices and The Parliament of Fowls
Melissa Ridley Elmes

16. Chaucer’s Cuckoo and the Myth of Anthropomorphism
Lesley Kordecki

Afterword: Gender, Genre, Genus
Carolynn Van Dyke

Notes on Contributors
Index