Table of Contents

Foreword, by Johan Galtung ix
Preface xiii

PART I. THEORETICAL AND HISTORICAL CONTEXTS

Chapter 1. A Global Perspective 3
  Four Contending Perspectives 4
  Promises: Technologies of Democracy 6
  Perils: Technologies of Domination 9
  Prospects: Technologies of Transformation 15
  Conclusion 17

Chapter 2. A Theoretical Framework 19
  The Global Crisis of Democracy 21
  Communication, Mediation, and Democratization 28
  A Contextualist Perspective 36
  The Dual-Effects Hypothesis 45
  Conclusion 53

Chapter 3. Totems and Technologies 54
  Information or Infoglut Society? 55
  The Seven Ages of Human Communication 65
  Technocratic vs. Communitarian Society 68
  Conclusion 72

Chapter 4. Technologies of Democracy and Development 74
  Competing Strategies of Communication and Democratization 75
  The Capitalist Democratic Models 79
  The Communist Democratic Models 84
  The Communitarian Democratic Models 87
  The Totalitarian Counterdemocratic Models 92
  Conclusion 93
PART II. PROMISES, PERILS, PROSPECTS

Chapter 5. The Promises of Teledemocracy 97
  The Telecommunity Movement 98
  Historical Origins 99
  Technological Parameters 103
  Institutional Frameworks 106
  From Telecommunity to Televoting 111
  From Televoting to Teledemocracy 114
  Conclusion 119

Chapter 6. The Perils of an Orwellian World 123
  Interactive Cable: The Qube in Ohio 124
  Databases: You Are in the Computer 130
  Block Modelling: The Computer as Judge and Jury 132
  Electronic Politics: The Coming of Mediocrity 136
  Electronic Church: The Emergence of Fundamentalism 141
  Conclusion 147

Chapter 7. Prospects at the Centers 148
  Democracy vs. Technocracy 149
  From Scarcity to Abundance 154
  From Deregulation to Reregulation 156
  From Public to Private Discourse 166
  Conclusion 172

Chapter 8. Prospects at the Peripheries 174
  Development vs. Developmentalism 174
  High-Accumulation Strategies 184
  High-Mobilization Strategies 191
  High-Integration Strategies 195
  Conclusion 206

Chapter 9. Prospects for Communitarian Democracy 208
  The Communitarian Ideals 209
  Technologies of Democratic Possibilities 212
  The Green Movement in West Germany 217
  The Sarvodaya Movement in Sri Lanka 228
  Towards Communitarian Media Systems 235
  Conclusion 240

References 243
Bibliographical Note 254
Author Index 255
Subject Index 258