

Contents

|   |           |
|---|-----------|
| General editor's preface   | xi        |
| Preface  | xiii      |
| Acknowledgements   | xvii      |
| A note on the text   | xviii     |
| Introduction: Who's afraid of Virginia Woolf?   |           |
| Feminist readings of Woolf  | 1         |
| The rejection of Woolf   | 2         |
| Rescuing Woolf for feminist politics: some points towards an alternative reading | 8         |
| PART I: ANGLO-AMERICAN FEMINIST CRITICISM  | 19 |
| 1 Two feminist classics   | 21        |
| Kate Millett   | 24        |
| Mary Ellmann   | 31        |
| 2 'Images of Women' criticism   | 42        |
| 3 Women writing and writing about women   | 50        |
| Towards a woman-centred perspective  | 50        |
| ' Literary Women '   | 53        |
| ' A Literature of Their Own '  | 55        |
| ' The Madwoman in the Attic '  | 57        |

viii Contents

|                                 |  |     |
|---------------------------------|--|-----|
| 4                               | Theoretical reflections  | 70  |
|                                 | Annette Kolodny   | 70  |
|                                 | Elaine Showalter  | 75  |
|                                 | Myra Jehlen   | 80  |
| PART II: FRENCH FEMINIST THEORY |  | 89  |
| 5                               | From Simone de Beauvoir to Jacques Lacan                         | 91  |
|                                 | Simone de Beauvoir and Marxist feminism                   | 91  |
|                                 | French feminism after 1968                                | 95  |
|                                 | Jacques Lacan   | 99  |
| 6                               | Hélène Cixous: an imaginary utopia                               | 102 |
|                                 | Patriarchal binary thought                                | 104 |
|                                 | Difference  | 105 |
|                                 | Écriture féminine 1) masculinity, femininity, bisexuality | 108 |
|                                 | The gift and the proper                                   | 110 |
|                                 | Écriture féminine 2) the source and the voice             | 113 |
|                                 | Imaginary contradictions                                  | 119 |
|                                 | Power, ideology, politics                                 | 121 |
| 7                               | Patriarchal reflections: Luce Irigaray's looking-glass           | 127 |
|                                 | Speculum  | 129 |
|                                 | Specul(ariz)ation and mimeticism                          | 131 |
|                                 | Freud   | 132 |
|                                 | Mysticism   | 135 |
|                                 | The inexorable logic of the Same                          | 137 |
|                                 | Womanspeak: a tale told by an idiot?                      | 143 |
|                                 | Idealism and ahistoricism                                 | 147 |
| 8                               | Marginality and subversion: Julia Kristeva                       | 150 |
|                                 | L'Etrangère   | 150 |
|                                 | Kristeva and Anglo-American feminist linguistics          | 151 |
|                                 | Sex differences in language use                           | 153 |
|                                 | Sexism in language  | 156 |
|                                 | Language, femininity, revolution                          | 161 |
|                                 | The acquisition of language                               | 161 |
|                                 | Femininity as marginality                                 | 163 |
|                                 | Feminism, Marxism, anarchism                              | 167 |

|                        |     |
|------------------------|-----|
| Notes           | 174 |
| Further reading | 182 |
| References      | 184 |
| Index           | 197 |