

Table of Contents

Part I

Dope vs. Hope: The Politics of Drugs

Introduction to Part I	3
Linking Drugs and Racism	5
Washington, D.C.: A "Test Case" for Drug Policies	6
1. Black to the Future: The Continuing Dilemma of Racial Politics	11
Is There a Conspiracy?	13
The Three R's: Reaganism, Reaganomics, and Racism	15
A Crisis of Vision, Strategy, and Leadership	18
Black Youth: Attacked, Abandoned, Angry, and Addicted	22
2. Racism and the Drug Crisis	25
In the Beginning	28
The Heroin Surge: Black Power vs. White Powder	38
Crack, Crime, and Crisis in the Black Community	44
Drugs and Economic Genocide	47
Chemical Warfare	49
Community Dope Busting	50
Conclusion	53
3. Women, Families, Communities, and the Drug Crisis	55
More Law, Less Order	56
Drug Abuse Grows	61
Endangered Species: Mothers and Children	62
Emergency in the Emergency Rooms	63
A Search for Solutions	64
4. The War on Drugs and Other Living Things	67
Bush's Opening Move	67
The Bush/Bennett War Proposal	68
The Camps	70
Stronger Law Enforcement	71
Democratic Critique	73
William Bennett: Portrait of a Drug Czar	74
The Drug Warriors	76
Scope of the Problem	79
The Struggle for Mo' Better News	82
Is a New Ice Age Coming?	83
Conclusion	86

5. Who Benefits (And Who Doesn't)	87
Third World Cartels: The First Tier of the Drug Economy	88
Gangs: The Second Tier of the Drug Economy	91
Third World Peasants, Immigrants, and African Americans:
The Third Tier of the Drug Economy	93
Doing the Laundry: White Professionals in the Drug Trade	94
The S & L Connection	96
Chemicals, Drug Production, and Environmental Destruction	98
More Drug War Profiteers: The Multinational Component	99
Alcohol and Tobacco—No Need for Firearms	102
Drug Culture Profits: The Problems of Drug Testing	105
Conclusion	108
6. The Internationalization of the Illegal Drug Trade	111
Debt Crisis in the Third World	112
Unholy Alliances in Drug Trafficking	116
Middle East Muddle	121
"Contra" dictions	121
Just Say Noriega	123
Drugs and Socialism	129
Drug Use in Africa	132
Multinational Fightback	133
The Dutch Gambit	137
Conclusion	138
Part II
Drug War on The Potomac
Introduction to Part II	141
7. The District of Columbia: A Tale of Many Cities	143
Federal Guinea Pig	145
The Politics of Limited Democracy	146
Conservative Onslaught on the District	148
Future Outlook	149
8. The Drug Crisis in Washington, D.C. — Part 1	153
Pre-War Trafficking and Substance Abuse	154
Odessa's Odyssey	155
The Great White Dope Comes to Washington	156
The Rise of Rap, Inc.	161
Nixon's Other War	163
A Free-Market Drug Industry	163
9. The Drug Crisis in Washington, D.C. — Part 2	165
The Barry Saga	165

Does D.C. Stand for Dodge City?	168
Health Crisis in the City	171
The District's Black Youth in Crisis	172
The Reign of Rayful Edmond	173
Decline or Denial?	175
Washington and the War on Drugs	176
The District's Drug Czar	179
The Community Fights Back	182
Impact of Barry's Arrest and Trial	185
Washington's Contradiction Heightened	187
Lessons from the District's Drug Wars	190
The Future for the District	193

Part III

A Different Path

Introduction to Part III	197
10. Taking a Different Path	199
Who Shall Solve the Drug Crisis?	200
Supply-Side Options	201
Purchase Coca Leaves and Opium Crops	202
End Fruitless Eradication Efforts	202
End "Zero Tolerance" Interdiction	203
Provide Stronger Oversight and Penalties on Chemical Exports	204
End the Criminalization of Inner-City Youth	204
Establishing New Approaches to Policing and Law Enforcement	206
Demand-Side Options	207
Provide Accessible, Quality Treatment	208
Institute National Clean Needle Exchange Programs	211
Declare a Public Health Emergency	212
Launch a Massive Nationwide Literacy Program	213
Legalization and Decriminalization	213
Who Pays the Cost of Ending the Drug Crisis?	217
The Need for Political and Economic Power	218
Conclusion	221
Afterword	223
Endnotes	225
Appendices	255
Index	275