Contents

Foreword xi

Foreword to the English edition xv

Chapter 1 The environmental challenge to management 1
  Ecology: passing phase or long-term problem? 1
  Taking stock: more trouble than it’s worth? 4
    The current state of the environment 4
    The change in awareness 9
  Market-based or command and control approach to environmental protection? 11
    Regulatory restrictions 12
    The road to an environmental market economy 16

Chapter 2 The environmental manager operating holistically 19
  The guiding principles of integral thinking 19
    Economic systems as open systems 19
    Holistic thinking and action 21
    The threat to the ecosystem (or, The inescapable conflict between ecology and economy) 29
  Environment as a production factor 31
    Economic internalization 31
    Ecological internalization 33
    The corporate view of environmental problems 34

Chapter 3 The need for proactive environmental management 35
  First steps to an environmental management theory 35
  The principles of reducing environmental damage 37
Chapter 4  Design and implementation of an environment information system 39

Elements of an environment information system 39
  Use of information technology 40
Corporate environmental consultancy 46
  Private consultants 46
  Environmental management associations 48

Chapter 5  Building ‘green’ 51

Environmentally orientated site location 51
Green industrial architecture 52

Chapter 6  Necessary framework for an environmental corporate policy 59

First steps towards environmental management 59
Current-status analysis 62
  Resource analysis: strengths/weaknesses 63
  Environmental analysis: opportunities/threats 64

Chapter 7  The environmental dimension in normative and strategic management 68

Influences in the normative field 68
  Changes in corporate culture 68
  Extension of corporate mission and guidelines 69
  Codes of behaviour 74
Influences in the strategic field 77
  Changes in goals and objectives 77
  Development of environmental strategies 79

Chapter 8  The materials management approach to a ‘closed loop’ economy 85

Away from cowboy economics 85
Implications for purchasing 87
Demand patterns of public procurement 92

Chapter 9  Production management as the management of residue 93

Environmentally orientated production 93
  Research and development 95
Designing the production process 99
Chapter 10 Integrative approach to logistics management

Principles of an integrated concept
Avoidance/use/disposal
Design for durability
The manufacturer's responsibility for disposal
Establishment of recycling management
Recycling models
Recycling production waste
Product recycling (remanufacturing/rebuilding)
Recycling used materials
Environmental packaging policies
Functions/environmental impact
Reuse of packaging materials
Degradable plastics
Recycling alone is not the solution
Methods of waste treatment

Chapter 11 Environmental marketing: more than just a green label

Marketing with social responsibility
Environmental awareness and the consumer
The marketing mix: environmental (re)design
Product policy
Distribution policy
Pricing policy
Communication policy

Chapter 12 Environmental thinking and the organization

The organization of environmental protection
Environmental officer
New forms of organization
Environmental affairs officer

Chapter 13 Personnel policies

Staff involvement
Employee incentives policies
Environmental protection and vocational training
Staff development
Implications for personal life
Healthy eating in the canteen 230
Community and school support 230

Chapter 14 Financing and funding environmental investment 233
Governmental financial assistance 233
Financial credit 234
Finance and consultancy under one roof 236

Chapter 15 Risk management and environmental liability 239
National and European regulations 239
From anthropocentric to ecocentric law 242
Environmental risk management 245

Chapter 16 The retailer as gatekeeper: pusher or blocker? 250
Environmental strategies in the retail trade 250
The pioneers 256

Chapter 17 The need for an environmental controlling system 266
Macroeconomic concepts (or, The doubts about GNP) 269
Microeconomic concepts 271
The social report 272
The environment report 274
Approaches to environmental accountancy 275
An environmental performance indicator system 285
Internal environmental audits 287
Environment assessment 294
Technology assessment 295
Environmental impact assessment 295
Product impact assessment 297

Chapter 18 Environmental ethics: a management gimmick? 300
Semantic transfiguration (or, Reality veiled behind words) 300
Morality and responsibility 302
Concluding remarks 305

Publications in German 307

Publications in English 313
CONTENTS

Case studies: index of companies 315

Useful addresses 317

Index 321