Contents

I. Historical Development

1. The Emergence of the Corporation as a Legal Unit and the Rise of Limited Liability, 3
   The Corporation as a Legal Unit, 3
   The Emergence of Limited Liability in English Corporations, 8
      Direct Liability, 8
      Indirect Liability, 9
   Limited Liability in the United States, 10
   English Joint Stock Companies and the Struggle over Limited Liability, 14
      Limited Liability in the Civil Law, 19
      Summary, 19

2. The Corporate Personality in the Courts, 21
   Jurisprudence and the Corporate Personality, 21
      What Is the Nature of Corporate Recognition? 22
      What Is Being Recognized? 23
      What Basic Legal Rights Arise from Recognition? 24
      What Constitutional and Statutory Rights and Responsibilities Relate to Corporations? 24
Competing Theories of the Corporation, 25
  State Action, 25
  Private Action, 26
  Social Creation, 28
  Summary, 28

Constitutional Applications, 30
  “Citizen,” 32
  “Person,” 36
  The “People,” 40
  General Constitutional Prohibitions on Governmental Power, 42
  Summary, 44

Statutory Construction, 45
  Summary, 46

3. The Emergence of Corporate Groups, 52
   Corporate Power to Acquire and Hold Stock of Another Corporation, 52
   The Emergence of Corporate Groups, 56
   Corporate Groups and Limited Liability, 58
   Corporate Groups and the Regulation of Business Activity, 60

II. Entity or Enterprise in Dealing with Corporate Groups:
   The American Judicial and Statutory Response

4. Early Judicial Attempts to Adapt Entity Law to the New Economy of Corporate Groups, 65
   Disregard of the Corporate Entity, 65
   Corporate Groups in the Courts, 68
   Railroad Litigation and the Beginnings of Enterprise Law, 70
   Contract, 71
   Tort, 73
   Statutory Law, 75
   Service of Process and Jurisdiction, 78
Conceptual Problems in the Disregard of the Corporate Entity, 79
Adaptation of the “Alter Ego” Concept, 81
“Piercing the Veil Jurisprudence,” 84

5. The Increasing Acceptance of Enterprise Principles, 89
   Development of Enterprise Law: General, 89
   Liberalized “Piercing the Veil Jurisprudence,” 90
   The Supreme Court and Enterprise Principles, 96
     The Unitary Tax Cases, 96
     Other Leading Decisions Applying Enterprise Principles, 97
   Statutory Law, 100
     Corporate Groups under Statutes of General Application, 101
     Corporate Groups under Statutes of Specific Application, 104
   Judicial Procedure, 116
   Bankruptcy, 117
   The Different Faces of Enterprise Law, 119

6. Economic Dimensions: The Role of Limited Liability, 121
   Limited Liability for Whom: Public Shareholders or Constituent Companies of the Group? 123
   The Perceived Advantages of Limited Liability, 125
     Encourages Investment by Absentee Investors, 125
     Promotes Capital Market Efficiency, 126
     Avoids Alleged Inefficiencies of Unlimited Liability, 127
     Summary, 132
   Undesirable Consequences of Limited Liability, 133
     Inherent Disadvantages, 134
   Limited Liability and Insurance, 138
   Limited Liability and Corporate Groups, 138
   Special Problems Presented by Corporate Structure, 141
     Partly Owned Subsidiaries, 142
     Conglomerates and Other Less Than Fully Integrated Groups, 144
Inapplicability of Market Analysis to Statutory Law, 147
Summary, 148

III. World Dimensions

7. European and British Commonwealth Experience with Enterprise Law, 153
   - The United Kingdom, 154
     - Judicial Decisions, 154
     - Statutory Law, 155
   - The British Commonwealth, 159
     - Australia, 159
     - Canada, 160
     - New Zealand, 160
   - Continental Europe, 161
     - Germany, 161
     - France, 163
     - Sweden, 164
     - The European Community, 165
   Summary, 167

   - International Law, 171
     - The Nationality Principle, 171
     - American Modification of the Nationality Principle, 172
     - The Territorial Principle and the Effects Doctrine, 175
     - The Protective Principle, 176
   - Home Country Extraterritoriality in the United States, 177
     - World War I: Entity Law, 179
     - World War II and Postwar: Enterprise Law, 180
   - Host Country Extraterritoriality, 187
     - Argentina: The Deltec Litigation, 187
     - India: The Bhopal Litigation, 189
     - Belgium: The Badger Case, 190
Foreign Enforcement or Recognition of Host Country Judgments, 191

Other Applications of Extraterritoriality, 192
  The United States, 193
  Germany, 194
  The European Community, 195
  Canada, Australia, and Sweden, 195
  Disclosure under Securities and Taxation Statutes, 196

Assertion of Jurisdiction to Adjudicate Over Foreign Affiliates, 197

Economic Limitations to National Legal Policy, 199

Summary, 200

IV. Jurisprudential Implications

9. Legal Rights, Legal Responsibilities, and Recognition of the Legal Unit: Individuals and Physical Objects, 205

Legal Units, Legal Attributes, and Legal Personality, 206
Legislative and Judicial Recognition of Legal Units, 208
Individuals, 211

Maritime Vessels and Other Physical Objects, 212
  Maritime Vessels, 213
  The Hindu Idol Case, 214
  Forests, Oceans, Rivers, and Natural Objects, 214

10. Legal Rights, Legal Responsibilities, and Recognition of the Legal Unit: Organizations, 216

Partnerships and Associations, 217
  Partnerships, 217
  Unincorporated Associations, 222

Statutory Creation of Novel Legal Units, 224
  “Separate Accounts” under the Investment Company Act of 1940, 225
  Noncorporate Tax-Exempt Organizations under the Internal Revenue Code, 227
Contents

Miscellaneous United States Statutes, 227
European Economic Interest Grouping, 228

Government Agencies, 228
Corporations, 229

11. The Jurisprudence of Enterprise Law, 231

The Traditional Legal Entity and the Economic Entity No Longer Match, 232
  The Limitations of Traditional Corporate Theory, 232
  The Theory of the Firm and the Economic Entity, 233
Enterprise Law as the Recognition of the Economic Entity as the Legal Unit, 236
  Lack of Legal Rights, 237
  Selective Application, 238
Enterprise Law as the Imposition of Derivative Liability, 238
Enterprise Law as a Form of Agency Law, 240
Enterprise Law as a Partial Elimination of Limited Liability, 240
Enterprise Law as a Form of “Privity,” 242
Enterprise Law, Economic Interrelationship, and Relational Law, 244
  Relational Law, 244
  Enterprise Principles: Corporate Groups, 245
  Enterprise Principles: Other Economic Relationships, 246
  Summary, 252

Conclusion, 253

Notes, 255

Table of Cases, 295

Index, 303