

Contents

About the Contributors vii

Foreword ix

Robert E. Hunter

Prefatory Remarks xiii

Sebastiano Vincelli

Introduction xvii

Kimberly A. Hamilton

Acknowledgments xx

1

International Migration and Security:

A Pragmatic Response 1

Sören Jessen-Petersen

Before 1989 1

After 1989 2

A Response Strategy 5

Conclusion 11

2

At a Crossroads: Europe and Migration 12

Demetrios G. Papademetriou

How Serious Is the Challenge? 13

Looking for Causes within Our Own Systems 23

Conclusion: What Might Be Done?	27
Notes	32
References	35

3

Shaping a Multilateral Response to Future Migrations 37

Jonas Widgren

Urgent Cooperation Tasks from the European Perspective 38

The Existing Regime and the New Agenda 44
Toward a New Multilateral Order 54

4

Involuntary Migration:
Refugees in the New Europe 56

Kathleen Newland

European Preoccupations 58
A European Refugee Strategy 63
New Directions in Refugee Policy 64
Notes 70

5

Migration and Economic Intervention 72

Sidney Weintraub and Georges A. Fauriol

Data on Immigration into the United States 73
Economic Cooperation with Sending Countries 78
The Migration Consequences of NAFTA 79
The Wage Differential and NAFTA 81
The Caribbean Basin Initiative 85
Conclusions 90
Notes 93