

Table of Contents

Improving Governance for Sustainable Development: Learning from Experience in Five OECD Countries

Overview	9
Introduction	9
I. The challenge of policy integration: Towards coherent government practice?.....	11
II. The role of civil society: Engaging all citizens effectively.....	24
III. Creating a longer-term view.....	30
IV. Some common lessons.....	31
Notes	34
Bibliography	35
Canada	37
Purpose	37
General introduction	37
A. Main issues and tensions.....	42
B. Institutions and policies.....	47
C. Decision-making mechanisms.....	65
D. Learning from the Canadian experience.....	74
E. Concluding remarks	84
Notes	88
Annexes
I. Summary of the National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy Proposed Measures for the 2000 Federal Budget.....	90
II. The Governance Model for Advanced Environmental Decision Making for the City of Toronto.....	95
III. Better Governance for Improving Sustainability in the North	98
IV. Improved Decision-making in the Fisheries Sector	101
V. Measuring the Implementation: The Example of Natural Resources in Canada.....	103
VI. The Role of the Canadian Environmental Assessment Agency (CEAA) in Providing Advice to Decision-makers	105
VII. The Chemical Industry "Responsible Care"	107
People Interviewed for Study of Canadian Governance for Sustainable Development ...	110
Bibliography	111

Germany	113
Purpose	113
General introduction	113
A. Main issues and tensions	116
B. Institutions and policies	127
C. Decision-making mechanisms	140
D. Learning from the German experience	144
E. Concluding remarks	146
Notes	148
Annex. Local Agenda 21 Processes in the Old and New Länder	149
Bibliography	150
Japan	155
Acknowledgements	155
General introduction	156
A. Main issues and tensions	159
B. Institutions and policies	177
C. Decision-making mechanisms	192
D. Learning from the Japanese experience	201
Notes	205
Annexes
I. Selected Private Sector Initiatives	207
II. Sustainable Development for Fisheries and other Marine Activities	210
III. Laws for Marine Protection in Japan	212
IV. List of Websites	215
Bibliography	216
The Netherlands	217
Purpose	217
General introduction	217
A. Main issues and tensions	219
B. Institutions and policy-making	232
C. Decision-making mechanisms	241
D. Learning from the Dutch experience	251
Annexes
I. Taxation and Sustainable Development in The Netherlands	266
II. The Dutch Budget for 2001	268
III. The Advisory Council for Research on Nature and Environment (RMNO)	270
IV. Departmental Organisation of the Ministry for Agriculture, Nature Management and Fisheries	272
V. Participatory Process in the City of Groningen: An Open Process of Urban Transport	274
VI. E.IA.-Procedure in The Netherlands	277
Bibliography	278

United Kingdom	281
Purpose	281
General introduction	283
A. Main issues and tensions	283
B. Institutions and policies	288
C. Decision-making mechanisms	305
D. Learning from the United Kingdom experience	311
E. Concluding remarks.....	315
Notes	320
Annexes
I. United Kingdom Sustainable Development Strategy: A Better Quality of Life.....	321
II. Towards an Urban Renaissance: The Report of the Urban Task Force (1999)	323
III. Survey of the Quality of Life Perceptions of City Residents.....	326
IV. The Green Ministers Initiative.....	328
V. Good Practice in National Government: Department for International Development (DFID)	330
VI. The Sustainable Development Commission	332
VII. The Performance and Innovation Unit.....	334
VIII. "Wiring It Up" – Accountability and Incentives for Joined-up Government	336
IX. Decision Making for Waste Management.....	338
X. New GM Commission.....	340
XI. Good Practice in Sustainability Reporting – The Co-operative Bank Report.....	342
XII. Consultative Processes Used by the Welsh Assembly for Sustainable Development.....	344
Bibliography	347