

Trade and the Environment
Theory and Evidence

Brian R. Copeland and
M. Scott Taylor

Sponsored by the
International Economics Section
Department of Economics
Princeton University

Princeton University Press
Princeton and Oxford

Contents

- Preface vii
- 1 The Trade and Environment Debate 1
 - 1.1 Globalization and the Trade versus Environment Debate 1
 - 1.2 Two Questions and a Preview of Our Answers 2
 - 1.3 Our Method of Analysis 6
 - 1.4 Plan of the Book 9
 - 2 Pollution in a Small Open Economy 12
 - 2.1 Technology 16
 - 2.2 Equilibrium along the Net and Potential Production Frontiers 26
 - 2.3 Scale, Composition, and Technique Effects 45
 - 2.4 Endogenous Pollution Policy 56
 - 2.5 Conclusion 65
 - 3 Is There an Environmental Kuznets Curve? 67
 - 3.1 Equilibrium Pollution and the Environmental Kuznets Curve 71
 - 3.2 Sources of Growth 74
 - 3.3 Income Effects 78
 - 3.4 Threshold Effects 86
 - 3.5 Increasing Returns to Abatement 97
 - 3.6 Conclusion 104
 - 4 Trade Liberalization and Environmental Quality 107
 - 4.1 Trade Frictions 110
 - 4.2 Trade Liberalization with Rigid Pollution Policy 112
 - 4.3 Trade Liberalization with Flexible Pollution Policy 123

4.4	The Political Economy Motive	132
4.5	Conclusion	139
5	Pollution Haven Models of International Trade	142
5.1	Exogenous Policy Differences: Rigid Emission Intensities	146
5.2	Exogenous Policy Differences: Marketable Permit Systems	153
5.3	Endogenous Pollution Havens	158
5.4	Global Pollution and the World Composition Effect	164
5.5	Environmentally Friendly Pollution Havens	170
5.6	Northern and Southern Institutional Differences	171
5.7	Conclusion	183
6	Factor Endowments, Policy Differences, and Pollution	187
6.1	Exogenous Policy: The Role of Factor Endowments	189
6.2	Endogenous Policy: Factor Endowments and Comparative Advantage	196
6.3	Correlated Characteristics: Being Rich and Capital Abundant	200
6.4	An Illustrative Example	206
6.5	Conclusion	213
7	Is Free Trade Good for the Environment? An Empirical Assessment	215
7.1	Three Questions That Deserve an Answer	220
7.2	The Pollution Data	223
7.3	Deriving the Reduced Form	227
7.4	From Theory to Estimation	239
7.5	Empirical Results	250
7.6	Alternative Specifications and Theories	261
7.7	Conclusion	271
8	Summary and Conclusions	275
8.1	Flexible Pollution Policy	275
8.2	Growth Is Not Trade	276
8.3	The Pollution Haven and Factor Endowments Hypotheses	277
8.4	Directions for Future Research	280
	References	285
	Index	291