Preface ........................................................................................................................................... vi
  Michael E. Whitman, Kennesaw State University, USA
  Amy B. Wosczynski, Kennesaw State University, USA

SECTION I: ISSUES IN SURVEY RESEARCH

Chapter I.
Exemplary Works on Information Systems Research ......................................................... 1
  Michael E. Whitman, Kennesaw State University, USA
  Amy B. Wosczynski, Kennesaw State University, USA

Chapter II.
Validating IS Positivist Instrumentation: 1997-2001 ....................................................... 15
  Marie-Claude Boudreau, University of Georgia, USA
  Thilini Ariyachandra, University of Georgia, USA
  David Gefen, Drexel University, USA
  Detmar W. Straub, Georgia State University, USA

Chapter III.
A Multitrait-Multimethod Analysis of the End User Computing Satisfaction and Computer Self-Efficacy Instruments ...................................................................................... 27
  Michael J. Masterson, United States Air Force, USA
  R. Kelly Rainer, Jr., Auburn University, USA
Chapter IV.
The Use of Structural Equation Modeling in IS Research: Review and Recommendations

Kim Shin Im, Yonsei University, Korea
Varun Grover, Clemson University, USA

Chapter V.
The Problem of Common Method Variance in IS Research

Amy B. Woszczynski, Kennesaw State University, USA
Michael E. Whitman, Kennesaw State University, USA

SECTION II: RIGOR AND RELEVANCE

Chapter VI.
Rigor in Grounded Theory Research: An Interpretive Perspective on Generating Theory from Qualitative Field Studies

Susan Gasson, Drexel University, USA

Chapter VII.
Investigating the Dynamics of IT-Enabled Change: The Appeal of Clinical Inquiry

Joe McDonagh, University of Dublin, Ireland

Chapter VIII.
Rigor, Relevance and Research Paradigms: A Practitioner’s Perspective

John C. Beachboard, Idaho State University, USA

SECTION III: VIRTUAL RESEARCH ISSUES

Chapter IX.
Updating Ethnography to Investigate Contemporary Organizational Forms

Julie Rennecker, Case Western Reserve University, USA

Chapter X.
Studying Virtual Work in Teams, Organizations and Communities

Daniel Robey, Georgia State University, USA
Leigh Jin, San Francisco State University, USA

SECTION IV: GLOBAL ISSUES

Chapter XI.
Methodological Issues in MIS Cross-Cultural Research

Elena Karahanna, University of Georgia, USA
Roberto Evaristo, University of Illinois, Chicago, USA
Mark Srite, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, USA
Chapter XII.
Global Information Management Research: Current Status and Future Directions ................................................................. 180
   Felix B. Tan, Auckland University of Technology, New Zealand
   R. Brent Gallupe, Queen’s University, Canada

SECTION V: EMERGING ISSUES

Chapter XIII.
Structuration Theory in Information Systems Research: Methods and Controversies ........................................................... 206
   Marshall Scott Poole, Texas A&M University, USA
   Gerardine DeSanctis, Duke University, USA

Chapter XIV. Simulation in IS Research: Technique Underrepresented in the Field 250
   Theresa M. Vitolo, Gannon University, USA
   Chris Coulston, Pennsylvania State University, USA

Chapter XV.
Cognitive Research in Information Systems Using the Repertory Grid Technique .. 261
   Felix B. Tan, Auckland University of Technology, New Zealand
   M. Gordon Hunter, University of Lethbridge, Canada

Chapter XVI.
Qualitative Research in Information Systems: An Exploration of Methods .......... 291
   M. Gordon Hunter, University of Lethbridge, Canada

Chapter XVII.
Stories and Histories: Case Study Research (and Beyond) in Information Systems Failures ........................................................... 305
   Darren Dalcher, Middlesex University, United Kingdom

Chapter XVIII.
Using Critical Realism in IS Research ................................................................. 323
   Sven A. Carlsson, Jönköping International Business School, Sweden

About the Authors ........................................................................................................... 339

Index ...................................................................................................................................... 346