Part I ~ Roots: Social Science Foundations

Chapter 1 ~ A Philosophy of Social “Science”
3
Chapter 2 ~ Foundational Disciplines
13
Chapter 3 ~ Mass Communication as a Research Field
35

Part II ~ Asking Questions and Collecting Data: Creating a Research Plan

Chapter 4 ~ Developing a Research Question, Reviewing the Literature, Exploring Data Sources, and Defining Variables
49
Chapter 5 ~ Designing Quantitative Research: Surveys, Experiments, and Quantitative Content Analysis
71
Chapter 6 ~ Designing Qualitative Studies: Participant Observation, Interviews, Focus Groups, and Qualitative Content Analysis
95

Part III ~ Approaches to Data Analysis: Basic Tools

Chapter 7 ~ Describing a Numerical Data Set and Making Inferences
115
Detailed Contents

About the Author

About This Book

xv

Part I ~ Roots: Social Science Foundations

Chapter 1 ~ A Philosophy of Social “Science”

- Qualitative Versus Quantitative Methods  5
  - The Argument for Qualitative Methods
  - The Argument for Quantitative Methods
  - Combining Methods and Achieving Consensus
- Deductive Versus Inductive Logic  8
- Applied Versus Basic Research  10
- The Limits of Social Science Research  11
- Important Terms and Concepts ~ Exercise ~ Note

Chapter 2 ~ Foundational Disciplines

13

- Anthropology and the Range of Human Experience  13
  - Language and Culture
  - Participant Observation and Depth Interviews
  - Mass Communication Applications
- Psychology and the Experimental Method  20
  - Methodological Limitations
  - The Concept of Experimental Control
  - More on Choosing Subjects
  - Human Subjects Issues
  - Mass Communication Applications
Chapter 3 ~ Mass Communication as a Research Field

Origins of Mass Communication Research 37
Qualitative Versus Quantitative Research Revisited 38
Content Analysis as a Key Research Tool 39
Mass Communication and New Media 42
Important Terms and Concepts ~ Exercise

Part II ~ Asking Questions and Collecting Data: Creating a Research Plan

Chapter 4 ~ Developing a Research Question, Reviewing the Literature, Exploring Data Sources, and Defining Variables 49

Reviewing the Academic Literature 50
The Nature of Academic Publishing 54
Defining and Refining Your Research Question 56
More About the Role of Theory 58
Finding Resources and Data for Your Project 61
Resources for Media Content
Using Data From Existing Studies
Gathering New Data From People
Defining and Measuring Variables 65
Reliability and Validity
Independent and Dependent Variables
Operationalization and Levels of Measurement
Important Terms and Concepts ~ Exercise

Chapter 5 ~ Designing Quantitative Research: Surveys, Experiments, and Quantitative Content Analysis 71

Survey Design Basics 72
Writing Survey Questions
Question Order, Wording, and Timing
Alternative Response Formats
Which Demographics?
How Many People, and Where to Get Them?
Which Survey Method Is Best?
Chapter 8 ~ Testing Hypotheses and Exploring Other Relationships

Testing Simple Hypotheses  139
   Understanding the Limitations of Hypothesis Testing
   The Logic of Hypothesis Testing
   Directional and Nondirectional Hypotheses
   Parametric and Nonparametric Tests
Understanding Chi-Square  144
Comparing Two Means  150
   Applying the t Test
   Testing Directional Versus Nondirectional Hypotheses
Working With Complex Variables  153
Multivariate Techniques for Statistical Analysis  155
   Analysis of Variance
   Linear Regression
   Factor Analysis
   Discriminant Analysis
   Cluster Analysis
   Path Analysis
   Time-Series Analysis

Important Terms and Concepts ~ Exercise

Chapter 9 ~ Qualitative Analysis: Identifying Themes and Writing Meaningful Summaries

Working With Theory and Identifying Themes  162
   Theory Testing in Qualitative Research
   Identifying General Themes and Patterns
Analyzing Qualitative Data  166
   Transcriptions and Field Notes
   Identifying General Patterns
   Identifying More Specific Themes
Other Forms of Analysis  170
   Analyzing Visual Material
   “Close Readings”
Writing Descriptive Summaries  172
   The “Insider” Viewpoint
   Making Use of Background Information
   Explaining and Exemplifying Patterns
   Media Content Descriptions
Relating Data to Conclusions  177

Important Terms and Concepts ~ Exercise
Part IV ~ Research in Broader Context: Contemporary Trends and the Dissemination of Research Results

Chapter 10 ~ Research Horizons: Opportunities and Challenges 183

New Media Technology 183
Characterizing Today’s Trends
New Ideas for Media Research
New Methods for New Media?
Research on Technology and Its Adoption

Research in a Global Village 191
The Feminist Contribution
International and Intercultural Media Research
Research Challenges for International and Intercultural Projects
Ethnic Diversity Within Pluralistic Societies
Participatory and Community-Based Research

Ethics in Research: A Further Note 196
Fraudulent and Misleading Data
The Peer-Review Process
Authorship Credit
Data Ownership

Important Terms and Concepts

Chapter 11 ~ Writing and Presenting the Research Report 203

Constructing the Research Paper 204
Organization
Writing Style
Citations
Technical Reports

About Conference Presentations 209
Alternative Conference Presentation Formats
A Concluding Note 211
