Contents

List of contributors  xii
Acknowledgements  xvii

PART I
Introduction  1

1 The social and cultural significance of online gaming  3
GARRY CRAWFORD, VICTORIA K. GOSLING AND BEN LIGHT

PART II
Production and play  23

2 Player production and innovation in online games: time for new rules?  25
APHRA KERR

3 Conflict, thought communities and textual appropriation in MMORPGs  40
ESTHER MACCALLUM-STEWART

4 Thrift players in a twisted game world? A study of private online game servers  60
HOLIN LIN AND CHUEN-TSAI SUN

5 The only (end)game in town: designing for retention in World of Warcraft  73
DOUGLAS BROWN

6 The boardgame online: simulating the experience of physical games  93
NEIL RANDALL
7 Games in the mobile Internet: understanding contextual play in Flickr and Facebook
FRANS MÄYRÄ

8 The whereabouts of play, or how the magic circle helps create social identities in virtual worlds
THIAGO FALCÃO AND JOSÉ CARLOS RIBEIRO

9 Framing the game: four game-related approaches to Goffman’s frames
RENÉ GLAS, KRISTINE JØRGENSEN, TORILL MORTENSEN AND LUCA ROSSI

PART III
Communities and communication

10 Identity-as-place: the construction of game refugees and fictive ethnicities
CELIA PEARCE AND ARTEMESIA

11 The rise and fall of ‘Cardboard Tube Samurai’: Kenneth Burke identifying with the World of Warcraft
CHRISTOPHER A. PAUL AND JEFFREY PHILPOTT

12 Analyzing player communication in multi-player games
ANDERS DRACHEN

13 Recallin’ Fagin: linguistic accents, intertextuality and othering in narrative offline and online video games
ASTRID ENSSLIN

14 Second Life as a digitally mediated third place: social capital in virtual world communities
FERN M. DELAMERE

15 Representations of race and gender within the gamespace of the MMO EverQuest
KEITH MASSIE

16 Wordslinger: visualizing physical abuse in a virtual environment
KATE E. TAYLOR
PART IV
Conclusion

17. It's not just a game: contemporary challenges for games research and the Internet
   GARRY CRAWFORD, VICTORIA K. GOSLING AND BEN LIGHT

Index