Contents

PREFACE XV

1 Introduction to Real World History vs. Eurocentric Social Theory 1

Holistic Methodology and Objectives 1

Globalism, not Eurocentrism 8

Smith, Marx, and Weber 12

Contemporary Eurocentrism and Its Critics 20

Economic Historians 24

Limitations of Recent Social Theory 26

Outline of a Global Economic Perspective 34

Anticipating and Confronting Resistance and Obstacles 38

2 The Global Trade Carousel 1400–1800 52

An Introduction to the World Economy 52

Thirteenth- and Fourteenth-Century Antecedents 56

The Columbian Exchange and Its Consequences 59

Some Neglected Features in the World Economy 61
CONTENTS

World Division of Labor and Balances of Trade 63
  Mapping the Global Economy 64
  The Americas 70
  Africa 71
  Europe 74
  West Asia 75
    The Ottomans 78
    Safavid Persia 82

India and the Indian Ocean 84
  North India 90
  Gujarat and Malabar 90
  Coromandel 90
  Bengal 91

Southeast Asia 92
  Archipelago and Islands 97
  Mainland 101

Japan 104

China 108
  Population, Production, and Trade 109
  China in the World Economy 111

Central Asia 117

Russia and the Baltics 123

Summary of a Sinocentric World Economy 126

Money Went Around the World and Made the World Go Round 131

World Money: Its Production and Exchange 131
  Micro- and Macro-Attractions in the Global Casino 133
  Dealing and Playing in the Global Casino 139

The Numbers Game 142
  Silver 143
  Gold 149
  Credit 150

How Did the Winners Use Their Money? 151
  The Hoarding Thesis 152
  Inflation or Production in the Quantity Theory of Money 153
  Money Expanded the Frontiers of Settlement and Production 158
    In India 158
    In China 160
    Elsewhere in Asia 162
Contents

4
The Global Economy: Comparisons and Relations

Quantities: Population, Production, Productivity, Income, and Trade
Population, Production, and Income 167
Productivity and Competitiveness 174
World Trade 1400–1800 178

Qualities: Science and Technology
Eurocentrism Regarding Science and Technology in Asia 185
Guns 195
Ships 197
Printing 200
Textiles 200
Metallurgy, Coal, and Power 202
Transport 203

World Technological Development 204

Mechanisms: Economic and Financial Institutions
Comparing and Relating Asian and European Institutions 208
Global Institutional Relations 209
In India 214
In China 218

5
Horizontally Integrative Macrohistory

Simultaneity Is No Coincidence

Doing Horizontally Integrative Macrohistory
Demographic/Structural Analysis 230
A “Seventeenth-Century Crisis”? 231
The 1640 Silver Crises 237
Kondratieff Analysis 248
The 1762–1790 Kondratieff “B” Phase: Crisis and Recessions 251
A More Horizontally Integrative Macrohistory? 255

6
Why Did the West Win (Temporarily)?

Is There a Long-Cycle Roller Coaster?
The Decline of the East Preceded the Rise of the West 264
   The Decline in India 267
   The Decline Elsewhere in Asia 271

How Did the West Rise? 276
   Climbing Up on Asian Shoulders 277
   Supply and Demand for Technological Change 283
   Supplies and Sources of Capital 294

A Global Economic Demographic Explanation 297
   A Demographic Economic Model 298
   A High-Level Equilibrium Trap? 300
   The Evidence: 1500–1750 308
   The 1750 Inflection 309
   Challenging and Reformulating the Explanation 312
   The Resulting Transformations in India, China, Europe, and the World 314
      In India 314
      In China 315
      In Western Europe 316
      The Rest of the World 317

Past Conclusions and Future Implications 318

Historiographic Conclusions and Theoretical Implications 321

Historiographic Conclusions: The Eurocentric Emperor Has No Clothes 322
   The Asiatic Mode of Production 322
   European Exceptionalism 324
   A European World-System or a Global Economy? 327
   1500: Continuity or Break? 328
   Capitalism? 330
   Hegemony? 332
   The Rise of the West and the Industrial Revolution 333
   Empty Categories and Procrustean Beds 334

Theoretical Implications: Through the Global Looking Glass 339
   Holism vs. Partialism 340
   Commonality/Similarity vs. Specificity/Differences 341
   Continuity vs. Discontinuities 342
   Horizontal Integration vs. Vertical Separation 344
   Cycles vs. Linearity 347