Contents

List of Figures  xi

Preface  xiii

Acknowledgments  xxi

CHAPTER ONE
Phenomenology and the Film Experience  3
  - The Embodied and Enworlded Eye: Perception and Expression  8
  - Film Theory and the Objectification of Embodied Vision  14
  - Phenomenology and Film Theory  26

CHAPTER TWO
The Act of Being with One's Own Eyes  51
  - Intentionality, Embodiment, and Movement  57
  - The Viewing Subject  97
  - Film and/as Viewing Subject  128
  - Whose Body? A Brief Meditation on Sexual Difference and Other Bodily Discriminations  143

CHAPTER THREE
Film's Body  164
  - Technology and Instrumentality  169
  - The Film Embodied  203
  - Film's Body: A Brief Intentional History  248

CHAPTER FOUR
The Address of the Eye  260
  - Thesis and Antithesis: The Paranoia of Split Vision  262
  - Synthesis: The Dialectics of Double Vision  270
  - The Eye's Address  285
  - Toward the "Incorporation" of Subjective Experience in Film Theory  290
  - Becoming and Concluding: The End Is In-Sight  300

Selected Bibliography  311

Index  323