Men, Women, and Domestics
Articulating Middle-Class Identity
in Colonial Bengal

Swapna M. Banerjee
Contents

List of Tables

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Table</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>viii</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Acknowledgements

ix

1. Introduction: The Bhadralok, Bhadramahila, and Domestic Workers in Colonial Bengal 1

2. A Genealogy of Servants: Dominance and Subordination in Households of Colonial Bengal 34

3. Reconstituting the Household: Defining Middle-Class Domesticity in Colonial Bengal—the Mistress and the Servant 96

4. Remembering and Writing the Subaltern: Bengali Middle-Class Recalls and Represents Domestic Workers 125

5. Subverting the Moral Universe: Transgression as a Theme in Representing Domestic Workers 164

6. Conclusion: Employers and Domestic Workers in a Cross-Cultural Perspective 196

Bibliography

212

Index

236