Religion and Violence in South Asia
Theory and Practice

Edited by
John R. Hinnells and Richard King
Contents

Notes on contributors vii

Introduction 1
JOHN R. HINNELLS AND RICHARD KING

PART I
Classical approaches to violence in South Asian traditions 9

1 Telling stories about harm: an overview of early Indian narratives 11
LAURIE L. PATTON (EMORY UNIVERSITY, USA)

2 The non-violence of violence: Jain perspectives on warfare, asceticism and worship 41
PAUL DUNDAS (EDINBURGH UNIVERSITY, UK)

3 Buddhist monks, Buddhist kings, Buddhist violence: on the early Buddhist attitudes to violence 62
RUPERT GETHIN (BRISTOL UNIVERSITY, UK)

4 Crimes against God and violent punishment in al-Fatāwā al-ʿĀlamgīriyya 83
ROBERT GLEAVE (EXETER UNIVERSITY, UK)

5 Text as sword: Sikh religious violence taken for wonder 107
BALBINDER SINGH BHOGAL (YORK UNIVERSITY, CANADA)

PART 2
Religion and violence in contemporary South Asia 137

6 Operationalizing Buddhism for political ends in a martial context in Lanka: the case of Siṃhalatva 139
PETER SCHALK (UPPSALA UNIVERSITY, SWEDEN)
7 Religion and violence: the historical context for conflict in Pakistan
IAN TALBOT (COVENTRY UNIVERSITY, UK)

8 The 2002 pogrom in Gujarat: the post-9/11 face of Hindu nationalist anti-Muslim violence
CHRISTOPHE JAFFRELOT (CERI, FRANCE)

PART 3
Theory: framing the 'religion and violence' debate

9 A categorical difference: communal identity in British epistemologies
PETER GOTTSCHALK (WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY, USA)

10 The global fiduciary: mediating the violence of 'religion'
ARVIND MANDAIR (UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN, USA)

11 The association of 'religion' with violence: reflections on a modern trope
RICHARD KING (VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY, USA)

Index