Contents

Editor's Acknowledgements ix
Editor's Introduction 1

PART I: RULES OF PROPERTY 19

1 An Administrative Blueprint of 1785 21
2 Introduction to the Burdwan District Records 1788–1800 36
3 Report on an Investigation of the Gauripur Raj Estate Archives 83
4 Rent in Kind and Money Rent in Eastern India under Early British Rule 94
5 Graft, Greed, and Perfidy 116
6 The Agrarian History of Northern India 119

PART II: SUBALTERN HISTORIES 125

7 Neel Darpan: The Image of a Peasant Revolt in a Liberal Mirror 127
8 Five Villages 184
9 On Some Aspects of the Historiography of Colonial India 187
10 The Prose of Counter-Insurgency 194
11 The Career of an Anti-God in Heaven and on Earth 239
12 The Millenarian Space 266
Contents

13 Chandra's Death 271
14 The Small Voice of History 304
15 Introduction to the Subaltern Studies Reader 318
16 Writing the Past Where Generations Meet 333
17 Subaltern Studies: Projects for Our Time and Their Convergence 346
18 Gramsci in India: Homage to a Teacher 361

PART III: THE TWO Histories OF EMPIRE 371

19 A Conquest Foretold 373
20 The Advent of Punctuality 391
21 A Colonial City and its Time(s) 409
22 Sir William Jones 435
23 Europe and the Exotic 438
24 Not at Home in Empire 441
25 Introducing an Anthropologist among the Historians 455
26 The Authority of Vernacular Pasts 474
27 A Construction of Humanism in Colonial India 479

PART IV: THE PROMISE OF NATIONHOOD 493

28 The Mahatma and the Mob 495
29 The Movement for National Freedom in India 504
30 Nationalism Reduced to 'Official Nationalism' 512
31 Nationalism and the Trials of Becoming 520
32 Foreword to the 'Gita' 534
33 Coping with the Excess of History 539

PART V: DEMOCRACY BETRAYED 553

34 Teen-Age Wage Slavery in India 555
35 On Torture and Culture 560
Contents

36  Indian Democracy: Long Dead, Now Buried  577
37  Knowing India by its Prisons  598
38  Calcutta Diary  609
39  Two Campaigns  612
40  On Naming a New Aspiration  629

PART VI: EXILE  633
41  The Tartar's Cry  635
42  The Migrant's Time  644
43  The Turn  652
44  Translating between Cultures  659