The Felt Community
Commonality and Mentality before the Emergence of Indian Nationalism

Rajat Kanta Ray
Contents

Preface ix
Acknowledgements xiii

Part I
Ambiguous Encounters at Close Quarters

Chapter 1 Nationalism and Patriotism 3
Nationalism 6
Nation 9
Patriotism 15
Patriot and Nationalist 22
Communalism 25
Mentality 31
Notes and References 39

Chapter 2 Communities of Sentiment: Muslims, Hindus, and Hindis in History 47
Identity and Subcontinent 50
The Term ‘India’ 51
The Land and the People 57
‘Hind’, ‘Hindustan’, ‘India’ 67
Characterizing the Country 74
‘Hindu’ and ‘Muslim’ 84
Hinduism Emerges: Islam Arrives 102
The Beehive Formation and the Unitary Community 125
Evolving a Plural Identity 133
The Common Heart of Hindustan 139
Sacred Space into Universal Dominion 156
The ‘Indians’ as a Commonalty 166
Popular Patriotic Sentiments 172
Notes and References 177

Chapter 3 English Colonization and Indian Commonalty: The Language and Mentality of Early Indian Resistance 213
Bengal and the Mughal Ruling Class 219
The Mughal Ruling Class and the East India Company 227
Calcutta or Alinagar 235
The Crisis of the Mughal Nobility 246
Mir Qasim and the Mughal Rally 252
The Collision with English Private Interests 259
The Mughal–English War of 1763–4 278
Mughal Collapse, Rural Violence, and the Indian Confederacy 301
‘The Progress of Political Philosophy’ 321
Notes and References 335

Part II
Storm Across the Ganges

Chapter 4 The Mentality of the Mutiny: Conceptions of the Alternative Order in 1857 353
I. The Nature of the Mutiny 353
II. Mentality 360
Contents

Race, Religion, and Realm 360
The Inversion of Power 395

III. Counter-Government 417
  Ideas of Authority 419
  The Framework of the Rebel Organization 431
  Mutiny Administration 450

IV. The Emotional Consequences of the Mutiny 464
Notes and References 468

Chapter 5 Embedded Mentalities 535
Notes and References 564

Index 569