THE SCAREMONGERS
The Advocacy of War and Rearmament 1896–1914

A. J. A. MORRIS
Contents

Preface ix

Acknowledgments xiii

Prologue Scaremongering: the charge rehearsed, accepted and enhanced 1

Part I Making friends and choosing enemies: the diplomats

1 The Kaiser sends a telegram and Chirol is aggrieved 13

2 The new tenant at 66 Dorotheenstrasse 24

3 Leo Maxse's ABC of better relations with Russia 37

4 To league with the shameless Hun 47

5 New friends and old enemies 59

6 Einkreisungspolitik – encirclement 72

Part 2 Alarums and excursions: the admirals and the generals

7 Dies irae, dies illa 89

8 Is the Kaiser coming for tea? 98

9 Enter 'the gorgeous Wreckington' 111

10 A discordant band of brothers 123

11 The Committee of Imperial Defence investigates 135

12 Of secrets, spies and saboteurs 148
Contents

13 Hysteria navalis 164

14 The sinking of Admiral Fisher 185

Part 3 For national security and party advantage: the politicians

15 Naval scaremongering: Garvin’s election cannon-ball 203

16 Conscription, or how to lose friends and votes 224

Part 4 ‘And he gathered them in a place called . . . Armageddon’

17 Collapse of the Triple Entente 251

18 A domestic interlude: Lord Northcliffe asserts himself 270

19 1911: Annus mirabilis 286

20 Priming the magazine 307

21 Military matters: Repington fights real and imagined foes 328

22 Over the brink 344

Epilogue Account rendered: the rewards of excess 363

Sources and notes 387

Select bibliography 463

Biographical index 473

Subject index 490