INSANITY AND THE LUNATIC ASYLUM
IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY

EDITED BY

Thomas Knowles and Serena Trowbridge

PICKERING & CHATTO
2015
CONTENTS

Acknowledgements ix
List of Tables xi
List of Contributors xiii

Introduction – Serena Trowbridge and Thomas Knowles 1

Part I: Literary

1 'Horrible Dens of Deception': Thomas Bakewell, Thomas Mulock and Anti-Asylum Sentiments, c. 1815–58 – Rebecca Wynter 11
2 'This Most Noble of Disorders': Matilda Betham on the Reformation of the Madhouse – Elaine Bailey 29
3 The Legacy of Victorian Asylums in the Landscape of Contemporary British Literature – Thomas Knowles 41

Part II: Quantitative

4 Building a Lunatic Asylum: 'A Question of Beer, Milk and the Irish' – Bernard Melling 57
5 'Just Can't Work Them Hard Enough': A Historical Bioarchaeological Study of the Inmate Experience at the Oneida County Asylum – Shawn Phillips 71
6 'Always Remember that you are in your Senses': From Keeper to Attendant to Nurse – Claire Chatterton 85

Part III: Cultural

8 'Attitudes Passionelles': The Pornographic Spaces of the Salpêtrière – Amanda Finelli 115
9 'The Poison that Upsets my Reason': Men, Madness and Drunkenness in the Victorian Period – Kostas Makras 135
10 'Madness and Masculinity': Male Patients in London Asylums and Victorian Culture – Helen Goodman 149
11 'Straitjacket': A Confined History – Will Wiles 167

Notes 183
Index 219