The Law of the European Central Bank

by

CHIARA ZILIOLI
and

MARTIN SELMAYR

HART-PUBLISHING

OXFORD - PORTLAND OREGON

2001
Contents

Table of Cases  xvii
Table of Legislation  xxi
Table of Figures  1
Abbreviations  li

Chapter 1: What is the European Central Bank?  1
I. Introduction  1
II. The organisational structure of today’s European Union  2
III. The place of the ECB inside the European Union  7
   1. A false question  8
   2. The “fourth pillar” proposal  9
   3. The bearer of monetary sovereignty since 1 January 1999  13
      3.1. The three supranational legal persons established by the
           EC Treaty  14
      3.2. The ECB—a Community institution?  15
      3.3. The ECB—a decentralised Community body?  16
      3.4. The example of the EIB  20
      3.5. Why an analogy between ECB and EIB is not appropriate  25
      3.6. Not a separate pillar of the Union, but an independent specialised organisation of Community law  29
      3.7. A new degree of central bank independence  32
IV. Practical consequences of the new constitutional balance inside the European Union  35
   1. Price stability as “Grundnorm” of the “new Community”  35
   2. ECB law and its relationship with secondary law adopted by Community institutions  37
   3. The control of the ECB’s financial resources  43
   4. The liability question  44
   5. The ECB in international relations  46
V. A democratic deficit?  47
VI. Conclusion  50

Chapter 2: Who Governs the European System of Central Banks?  53
I. Introduction  53
II. The organisational structure of the ESCB  54
Contents

1. The ESCB's two-level organisation 54
2. The ECB as governor of the ESCB 57
   2.1. The division of powers in federal States 58
   2.2. The model chosen for the division of powers inside the ESCB 63
   2.3. Does subsidiarity apply within the ESCB? 70
   2.4. The "daughter" argument 72

III. The legal position of the national central banks: national authorities or ECB agents? 73

IV. The principle of "System integrity" 80

V. Conclusion 82

Chapter 3: The Making and Implementation of ECB Law 83

I. Introduction 83

II. The making of ECB law 83
   1. The supranational decision-making bodies of the ECB 83
      1.1. The Executive Board of the ECB 84
      1.2. The Governing Council of the ECB 86
   2. ECB law and its effects 91
      2.1. ECB law intended to produce external legal effects 91
      2.2. ECB law intended to produce legal effects inside the ESCB 103
      2.3. ECB law with internal and external effects: is there really a difference? 111

III. The implementation of ECB law 112
   1. The decision on direct or indirect implementation 113
      1.1. The presumption in favour of indirect implementation in Community law 113
      1.2. The ECB's discretion under Article 9.2 of the Statute 114
      1.3. Unfettered discretion 115
      1.4. Article 12.1 of the Statute 116
      1.5. Article 5.2 of the Statute 119
      1.6. The exclusion of the ECB's discretion 120
   2. Direct implementation of ECB law 121
      2.1. Fields in which the ECB has chosen direct implementation of ECB law 121
      2.2. Liability in the context of direct implementation of ECB law 124
      2.3. Legal remedies in the context of direct implementation of ECB law 125
   3. Indirect implementation of ECB law 126
      3.1. Fields in which the ECB has chosen indirect implementation of ECB law 126
      3.2. Liability in the context of indirect implementation of ECB law 129
2. The national central banks 174
3. The European Community 177
4. The European Central Bank 179

III. The division of external competences in economic and monetary union 183
1. The jurisprudence of the ECJ on external competences: the doctrine of parallelism 183
2. External competences in economic policy 185
3. External competences in monetary policy 186
  3.1. The doctrine of parallelism applied to horizontal conflicts 187
  3.2. Explicit external competences of the Community under Article 111(1), (3) and (4) EC 190
  3.3. Explicit external competences of the ECB under Article 105(2), second and third indents EC in conjunction with Article 23 of the Statute 201
  3.4. Implied external competences of the ECB 206
  3.5. Effects of ECB agreements 211
  3.6. Residual competences of the Member States having adopted the single currency 213
  3.7. Residual (autonomous) competences of national central banks 228

IV. External representation of the “euro area” in international organisations 231
1. The rules on external representation in Article 111(4) EC and Article 6 of the Statute 231
2. The rules on external representation applied 233
  2.1. IMF 235
  2.2. BIS 236
  2.3. OECD 236
  2.4. G–7 237
  2.5. G–10 238
  2.6. G–20 238

V. Legal remedies 238
1. Judicial control \textit{a posteriori} 239
2. Judicial control \textit{a priori} 241
  2.1. Application of Article 300(6) EC to Community agreements concluded under Article 111(1) and (3) EC and to ECB agreements 242
  2.2. The ECB as applicant in the prior reference procedure 244

VI. Conclusion 245

A final word 247

Bibliography 249