Corporate Personality in the 20th Century

Edited by
CHARLES E. F. RICKETT
and
ROSS B. GRANTHAM

HART PUBLISHING
OXFORD
1998
Contents

List of Tables xi
Table of Cases xv
Table of Legislation xxii

1 The Bootmaker's Legacy to Company Law Doctrine 1
   Ross Grantham and Charles Rickett
   I. The Victorian Company 1
   II. The New Age 4

2 Corporate Personality—Limited Recourse and its Limits 11
   David Goddard
   I. The Point of Salomon v. A Salomon & Co. Ltd.—Limited Recourse Works 11
   II. The Limits of Limited Liability 17
   III. Developments in the Last One Hundred Years 44
   IV. Conclusions 63

3 Commentary on Goddard 65
   Ross Grantham
   I. Limited Liability 65
   II. Corporate Personality 67

4 Corporate Groups 71
   Robert P. Austin
   I. Introduction 71
   II. Inroads into Salomon's case 71
   III. The Corporate Group Concept 72
   IV. Reasons for the Wholly Owned Group Structure 73
   V. Management Structures 74
   VI. Financial Management 75
   VII. The Tension Between Business Organisation and Corporate Structure 75
   VIII. Group Liability to Voluntary (Contract) Creditors 76
   IX. Qualification to the Separate Entity Doctrine 77
   X. "Lifting the Corporate Veil" in the Corporate Group Context 78
   XI. The Briggs Case 79
   XII. The Uncertainty Argument 79
   XIII. Law Versus Commercial Reality—the Qintex Case 80
   XIV. Creditor Expectations 81
XV. The Administration of Group Corporate Liquidations
XVI. "Pooled Liquidation" under Australian Law
XVII. The New Zealand Solution
XVIII. The Harmer Recommendations in Australia
XIX. An Exception for Financial Segregation
XX. Involuntary (Tort) Creditors
XXI. Parent Liability for Insolvent Trading
XXII. Conclusion

5 Commentary on Austin
Andrew Borrowdale
I. Introduction
II. History of the New Zealand Legislation
III. Pooling Under the Companies Act 1993 (NZ)
IV. Contributions Under the Companies Act 1993 (NZ)

6 Corporate Personality, Limited Liability and the Protection of Creditors
Dan Prentice
I. Recovery from Creditors
II. Recovery from Shareholders
III. Recovery from Directors
IV. Enhancing the Pool of Assets—Directors' Liability
V. Conclusion

7 Commentary on Prentice
Thomas G. W. Telfer
I. Risk-taking and the Limited Liability Company
II. Uncompensated Risk and the Market
III. The Impact of Director Liability
IV. Uncertainty and the Judicial Interpretation of Risk
V. The Interpretation of the New Zealand Companies Act 1993
VI. The Hypothetical Bargain
VII. Conclusion

8 Company Law and Regulatory Complexity
Joanna Gray
I. Introduction
II. "Officer Liability" Provisions and the Decision in
   Re Attorney-General's Reference (No 1 of 1995)
III. Recent Trends in Corporate Regulatory and Criminal Responsibility
IV. Conclusion
9 Commentary on Gray

Bernard Robertson

I. Should There be a General Defence of Ignorance of the Law? 169
II. Should There be a Narrower Defence? 171
III. What does This Tell Us about the Rationale for Corporate Liability? 172
IV. What are the Practical Effects? 173

10 Changes in the Role of the Shareholder

Jennifer Hill

I. Introduction 175
II. Visions and Revisions of the Shareholder 177
III. Visions of the Shareholder in Recent Australian Corporate Law Developments 195
IV. Conclusion 208

11 Commentary on Hill

Robert P. Austin

I. The Shareholder as Owner/Principal 209
II. The Shareholder as Beneficiary 210
III. The Shareholder as Bystander 210
IV. Shareholders as Participants in a Political Entity 211
V. The Shareholder as Investor 211
VI. The Shareholder as Cerberus 212
VII. The Institutional Shareholder as Managerial Partner 213
VIII. Conclusion 213

12 Models of Corporate Regulation: The Mandatory/Enabling Debate

Ian M. Ramsay

I. Introduction 215
II. Corporate Regulation: The Mandatory/Enabling Debate 218
III. The Costs of Mandatory Rules 238
IV. Mandatory Corporate Disclosure Rules: A Case Study 243
V. Limited Liability: A Second Case Study 249
VI. Some Implications of Institutional Investment and Electronic Commerce for Mandatory Rules 265
VII. Conclusion 269

13 Commentary on Ramsay

Tim Hazledine

14 Financial Transparency and Corporate Governance: The United States as a Model?

Louis Lowenstein

I. Three Elements of Shareholder Oversight 279
Contents

II. The German and Japanese Structures are Intuitively Sensible 280
III. The United States Model Seems to be Inferior, Yet it Works 281
IV. The American Mandated Disclosure System is a Cornerstone 281
V. The Corporate Chieftains Manage What We Measure 282
VI. How Good is American Accounting? 284
VII. The Process by Which the Pressure is Applied 288
VIII. Drawbacks of the American System 288
IX. An International Perspective 289
X. Conclusion 291

Index 293