Human Rights, the Rule of Law, and Development in Africa

Edited by Paul Tiyambe Zeleza and Philip J. McConnaughay
Contents

Introduction  The Struggle for Human Rights in Africa  1
Paul Tiyambe Zeleza

Part I: Universalism and Relativism in Human Rights Discourse

1. Restraining Universalism: Africanist Perspectives on Cultural Relativism in the Human Rights Discourse  21
   Bonny Ibhawoh

2. Toward a Theory of Applied Cultural Relativism in Human Rights  40
   N. Barney Pityana

   Alamin M. Mazrui

4. The Rule of Law and Sociopolitical Dynamics in Africa  71
   Ada O. Okoye

5. Human Rights and Minorities: A Theoretical Overview  81
   E. Ike Udogu

6. Globalization and Narrowing the Scope of Democracy in Africa  94
   Kidane Mengisteab

Part II: The Economic and Political Dimensions of Human Rights

7. Human Rights and Development  109
   Pansy Tlakula
8. Human Rights, Economic Development, and the Corruption Factor 120
   Yemi Osinbajo

   Christof Heyns and Frans Viljoen

10. Securing Human Rights Through the Rule of Law in Tanzania 144
    Luitfried Mbunda

11. The Human Rights Situation in Egypt 157
    Ahmed Thabet

    Cassandra R. Veney

Part III: NGOs and Struggles for Human Rights

    Makau Mutua

14. Human Rights and Development in Africa: NGOs 198
    Claude E. Welch, Jr.

15. NGOs and the Promotion of Human Rights in South Africa 209
    Vincent Saldhana

16. Civil Society and the Struggle for Human Rights and Democracy in Zambia 216
    Jotham C. Momba

17. The Compromised Brokers: NGOs and Displaced Populations in East Africa 235
    Monica Kathina Juma

Notes 257
References 271
List of Contributors 289
Index 297