Self-Regulation and the Internet

by

Monroe E. Price
and
Stefaan G. Verhulst
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Introduction

1. General Concept and Characteristics
   1.1. Defining Self-Regulation
   1.2. Regulation and Regulatory Tools
   1.3. Cost-Benefit Analysis
   1.4. Taxonomy of Self-Regulation
   1.5. Lessons from Other Industries

2. Internet Self-Regulation
   2.1. The "Self" of Internet Self-Regulation
   2.2. Justifications Behind Internet Self-Regulation
   2.3. Self-Regulatory Tools
   2.4. Comparative Practices

3. Conclusions and Recommendations

References

Primary Sources

Legal Cases

---

Chapter 2

Internet Codes of Conduct

1. Process and Methodology
   1.1. Outside Participation and Consultation
   1.2. Sources of Meaning: Illegal and Harmful Content
   1.3. Evolutionary Nature of Codes

2. Comparative Analysis of Codes
   2.1. Framework: The 4 X C Approach
   2.2. Comparative Summary

3. Recommendations

References

Primary Sources
Table of Contents

Chapter 3
Internet Filters and Rating Mechanisms as Self-Regulatory Tools 75
   Introduction 75
   1. Parental-Control Devices and New Technologies: Conceptual
      and Value Chain Approach 77
      1.1. Filtering Typologies: A Continuum 77
      1.2. Functional Elements of Filtering Systems 79
      1.3. Overview of Possible Filter Locations along the Content Transmission Stream 81
   2. Taking Stock: Current Models of Parental Control and Relevant Developments 82
      2.1. Broadcast Filtering and Blocking Techniques:
          The Analogue to Digital Transition and Changing
          Possibilities for Child Protection 82
      2.2. Internet Filtering Models 97
   3. Models for a Converged World 113
      3.1. The Elements of a Parental-Control System 113
      3.2. Possible Models for a Parental-Control System 123
   4. Summary and Conclusions 128
   References 133

Chapter 4
Shifting Paradigms: Reconsidering Regulation of Digital Content 135
   Introduction 135
   The Underpinnings of the Paradigm Shift 136
   The Regulatory Paradigm Shift 141
   The Paradigm Shift Revisited 150
   Conclusion: New Scarcities and New Intermediaries 157
   References 159

Appendixes
   Appendix 1. Model Code: A Toolkit for Planning 163
   Appendix 2. Content Filters on the Internet 173
   Appendix 3. Council Recommendation 187
   Appendix 4. The “Layer Cake Model” 198

Index 201