The Growing Autonomy of International Commercial Arbitration

Markus A. Petsche
Table of Contents

Acknowledgments v

Table of Contents vii

Introduction 1

Chapter I
Theoretical foundations and practical manifestations of the increasing autonomy of international commercial arbitration

I. The Legitimacy of the Autonomy of International Commercial Arbitration: An Analysis of the Interests of the Actors Involved 7
A. Interests of the consumers of international commercial arbitration: The potential ‘superiority’ of arbitration over ordinary litigation 8
1. Arbitration as a more expeditious dispute settlement modus 10
2. Arbitration as a means to respond to the specific normative needs of international commercial dispute resolution 11
   a. The concept of internationality 12
   b. ‘Neutrality’ of the applicable substantive law (substantive neutrality)
      i) Substantive neutrality in general 13
      ii) Substantive neutrality in international commercial arbitration 14
   c. Party-autonomy 16
   d. Procedural neutrality
      i) Procedural neutrality in general 18
      ii) Procedural neutrality in international commercial arbitration 19
B. State interests: Benefits derived from the development of arbitral dispute resolution 20
   1. Alleviation of the onus on the overburdened State courts and the economic benefits associated with arbitration 20
   2. The Growth of international commerce and the preservation of global peace 22
C. Interests of the legal profession 24
II. Practical Manifestations of the Autonomy of International Commercial Arbitration: Institutional Framework of the Pursuit of Increased Autonomy
A. UNCITRAL
1. The New York Convention ‘on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards’
2. The UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules
3. The UNCITRAL Model Law
B. Arbitration institutions
1. The role of arbitration institutions in ensuring procedural efficiency
2. The role of arbitration institutions in ensuring the autonomy of the arbitral award
3. The particular role of the ICC as a contributor to the elaboration of international trade law

III. Summary

Chapter 2
The autonomy of the law applicable to the merits
I. The Drawbacks of the Conflict of Laws Method
A. Classical drawbacks of the conflict of laws
1. Illegitimacy of the prevalence of conflict of laws justice (or private international law justice) over material justice
2. Complicating factors and unpredictability of the conflict of laws
a. Characterisation
b. The renvoi
c. The preliminary (or incidental) question
d. Lex forism of State courts
e. The impact of the complicating factors on the predictability of the conflict of laws
B. The inappropriateness of the application of domestic laws to international commercial transactions and the inability of the conflict of laws to ensure substantive neutrality and party-autonomy
1. The inability of the conflict of laws to ensure substantive neutrality
2. The inability of the conflict of laws to ensure party-autonomy

II. The Unification and Liberalisation of International Trade Law
A. The unification of conflict of laws rules: A means to ensure international normative harmony
B. Traditional tools to achieve substantive unification and liberalisation 51
   1. Substantive unification and liberalisation at the international level: The adoption of uniform laws 51
   2. Substantive unification and liberalisation at the domestic level: The adoption of material rules of private international law 53
C. The doctrine of lex mercatoria or transnational law 55
   1. Terminology 55
   2. Historical background and evolution of the doctrine of lex mercatoria 57
   3. The lex mercatoria doctrine as a means to promote the unification and liberalisation of international trade law 60
   4. Recognition of lex mercatoria by the State 62
      a. Validity of choice-of-law clauses providing for the application of lex mercatoria 62
      b. The arbitrator’s right to apply lex mercatoria in the absence of a choice-of-law clause concluded by the parties 64
         i. Application of the conflict of laws rules of the arbitral seat 64
         ii. Application of the most ‘appropriate’ conflict of laws rules 65
         iii. The voie directe method 66
         iv. The tronc commun doctrine 67
         v. Lex mercatoria 67
   5. Future perspectives: The application of lex mercatoria by State courts 68

III. Summary 69

Chapter 3
The procedural autonomy of international commercial arbitration 71

I. The Autonomy of the Arbitration Agreement and the Doctrine of Separability 71
A. Functions of the doctrine of separability 73
   1. Separability and Kompetenz-Kompetenz 73
   2. Separability and the validity of the arbitration agreement 74
B. Aspects of separability: from separability to ‘autonomy from all national laws’ 76
   1. Private international law autonomy and the submission of the arbitration agreement to its ‘own’ law 76
   2. Autonomy from all national laws 79
II. Kompetenz-Kompetenz
A. Concurrent jurisdiction of State courts
   1. Procedural channels of challenges to arbitral jurisdiction
   2. The extent of court review of the validity of the arbitration agreement
   3. The preliminary award on jurisdiction
B. The priority rule

III. The Appointment and Challenge of Arbitrators
A. The limited autonomy of ad hoc arbitration
B. The autonomy of institutional arbitration
   1. The availability of mechanisms increasing the autonomy of appointment and challenge procedures
   2. Court review of institutional decisions

IV. The Arbitrator’s Power to Order Interim and Conservatory Measures
A. The concept of interim and conservatory measure
B. Recognition of the power of arbitrators to order interim or conservatory measures
C. The courts’ concurrent jurisdiction to order interim or conservatory measures
   1. The limited powers of arbitrators
   2. Court assistance

V. Summary

Chapter 4
The autonomy of the arbitral award: the restricted scope of court control of the arbitral award

I. The Prohibition of Review on the Merits (révision au fond)
A. The meaning of (the prohibition of) review on the merits
B. The prohibition of review on the merits of foreign and domestic arbitral awards
   1. The distinction between foreign and domestic arbitral awards
   2. The prohibition of review on the merits of foreign arbitral awards
   3. The prohibition of review on the merits of domestic arbitral awards
C. Exceptional review on the merits
   1. England: The question of English law
2. United States: Manifest disregard of the law (the manifest disregard exception)
   a. The meaning of manifest disregard of the law
   b. A controversial issue: The applicability of the manifest disregard exception to New York Convention awards
      i) The concept of the New York Convention award
      ii) The applicability of the manifest disregard exception to New York Convention awards

II. The Limitation of the Number of Grounds Invalidating Arbitral Awards
    A. Grounds aimed at the protection of the parties' autonomy of will
       1. Lack of validity of the arbitration agreement
       2. Non-compliance with the will of the parties by the arbitral tribunal
    B. Grounds aimed at safeguarding procedural fairness
       1. Lack of independence or impartiality of an arbitrator
       2. Breach of due process
    C. Grounds aimed at preserving State interests
       1. Arbitrability
       2. Public policy

III. The Restrictive Interpretation of the Grounds Invalidating Arbitral Awards
    A. The decline of the traditional hostility vis-à-vis arbitration and the non-arbitrability doctrine
       1. Arbitration as a threat to the State monopoly of justice
       2. Arbitration as a threat to decisional accuracy
       3. Arbitration as a threat to public policy
       4. Arbitration as an ‘inappropriate’ dispute settlement mechanism
    B. The tacit waiver of the right to challenge an award on the basis of a breach of due process or the lacking impartiality/independence of an arbitrator
       1. The tacit waiver as a manifestation of the estoppel principle
       2. Recognition of the tacit waiver by legislators and courts
       3. The scope of waivable claims
    C. The lowering of the due process standard

IV. Summary
Chapter 5
The autonomy of the arbitral award: Internationalisation of the standards of review of arbitral awards

I. Decreasing Recourse to the Conflict of Laws Method for the Purposes of Assessing the Enforceability of Arbitral Awards 130
   A. The traditional predominance of conflict of laws rules 130
      1. The doctrine of localisation of international arbitration (and arbitral awards rendered in international arbitration) 131
      2. The nationalisation of international arbitration (and arbitral awards rendered in international arbitration) 132
   B. Delocalisation of arbitral awards 133
      1. The theoretical foundations of delocalisation (judicial and legislative) 133
      2. Legislative delocalisation in practice 135
   C. The internationalisation of court review of arbitral awards 135
      1. The rationale of internationalisation 136
      2. The internationalisation of court review of arbitral awards and dualistic approach to arbitration 137
         a. Internationality of arbitration 138
            i) The definition of international arbitration by the Swiss Private International Law Statute (PILS) 138
            ii) The economic approach of the French Nouveau Code de Procédure Civile (NCPC) 139
            iii) Recourse to alternative criteria: the UNCITRAL Model Law (Model Law) and the Italian Codice di Procedura Civile (CPC) 140
            iv) The impact of the will of the parties and the phenomenon of ‘agreed’ internationality 140
         b. Dualistic arbitration legislation 141
         c. Dualistic case-law or ‘hidden dualism’ 143

II. International Standards of Review of Arbitral Awards 144
   A. Objective arbitrability 144
      1. The lacking necessity to depart from the conflict of laws method 144
      2. Legislative material rules: The German and Swiss examples 145
      3. The elaboration of international standards by the courts: The American example 146
         a. From the Bremen to Mitsubishi 146
         b. Recognition of the specificity of international arbitration 147
         c. Reliance on the New York Convention’s purpose of unifying standards of enforcement of arbitral awards 148
B. Public policy
   1. The genesis of the concept of international public policy: Domestic, international, and transnational (or 'truly international') public policy
   2. International public policy as a tool to increase the autonomy of arbitral awards: Methodological approaches
      a. Statutory reference to international public policy
      b. A narrow reading of the public policy exception under the New York Convention
      c. Elaboration of international public policy standards by the courts: The American example

III. Summary

Chapter 6
The autonomy of the arbitral award: judicial delocalisation

I. Judicial Delocalisation of the Arbitral Proceedings
   A. Delocalisation and party autonomy
   B. Delocalisation and the lack of legitimacy of the application of the law of the seat
   C. Delocalisation in practice: Institutionalisation and practical limits of delocalisation

II. The Declining Role of the Action to Set Aside
   A. The judicial delocalisation of arbitral awards and the question of the international effectiveness of a decision setting aside an arbitral award
   B. The judicial delocalisation of arbitral awards in recent arbitration statutes: A chronology of events
      1. The Belgian Law of 27 March 1985 on International Arbitration
      2. Article 192 of the 1987 Swiss PILS and its influence on Tunisian and Swedish arbitration law

III. Judicial Precedents Enforcing Arbitral Awards Set Aside in the Country of Origin
   A. Legal bases
      1. The 'more favourable right' provision contained in Article VII of the New York Convention
      2. The optional character of the refusal to enforce an award in accordance with Article V(1)(e) of the New York Convention
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>3. The specific regime applicable under the 1961 Geneva Convention</td>
<td>166</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B. Controversy</td>
<td>167</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IV. The Interests Involved in the Enforcement of Arbitral Awards Set</td>
<td>169</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aside in the Country of Origin</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. The lack of involvement of State interests</td>
<td>169</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B. The ‘false’ conflict between effectiveness of the arbitral award and</td>
<td>170</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>predictability</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. The conflict between effectiveness of the arbitral award and</td>
<td>171</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>decisional (normative) harmony</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>V. Possible Ways of Reconciling International Normative Harmony and</td>
<td>174</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Effectiveness of Arbitral Awards</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. The general acceptance of international standards of control</td>
<td>174</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B. The conditional recognition of decisions setting aside arbitral</td>
<td>175</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>awards</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VI. The Reorganisation of the International Enforcement System:</td>
<td>176</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>De-centralisation and Centralisation of the International Enforcement</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>System</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. The de-centralisation of the international enforcement system</td>
<td>176</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B. The centralisation of the international enforcement system and the</td>
<td>179</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>establishment of a central authority having exclusive jurisdiction to</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rule on the enforceability/validity of arbitral awards</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VII. Summary</td>
<td>180</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conclusion</td>
<td>181</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bibliography</td>
<td>187</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>