

KLUWER LAW INTERNATIONAL

New European Approaches to Long-Term Unemployment

What Role for Public Employment Services and What Market for Private Stakeholders?

Edited by
Germana Di Domenico and Silvia Spattini

Wolters Kluwer

Law & Business

AUSTIN BOSTON CHICAGO NEW YORK THE NETHERLANDS

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Notes on Contributors	xv
Preface
Johan ten Geuzendam	xvii
Acknowledgements	xix
Introduction
Germana Di Domenico and Silvia Spattini	xxi
Part I: Policy Interventions and New Managerial Techniques for Tackling Long-Term Unemployment by Public Employment Services	1
Chapter 1 Policies against Long-Term Unemployment in the Enlarged Europe	3
Mattia Makovec
1. Introduction	3
2. Facts and Figures on Long-Term Unemployment in Europe	4
3. Passive Unemployment Policies	13
4. Active Labour Market Policies in Europe: Recent Trends and Selected Experiences	18
4.1. Trends in Active Labour Market Policy Expenditure and Participation	18
4.2. Strictness of Activation Measures for ALMP Participants	21
5. Selected Evidence on the Effectiveness of Policies against Long-Term Unemployment	22
6. Conclusions	24
References	24

Chapter 2	The Capacity of Active Labour Market Policies to Combat European Unemployment	27
	Jochen Kluve
	1. Introduction	27
	2. Background of the Analysis: Three Frames	31
	2.1. Frame 1: The European Employment Strategy	31
	2.2. Frame 2: The Classification of Measures	32
	2.3. Frame 3: The Evaluation Methodology	33
	3. The Situation in the EU Member States	33
	4. Meta-Analysis: Basic Idea and Procedure	34
	5. Empirical Findings	35
	6. Conclusions	36
	References	36
Chapter 3	The Use of Statistical Profiling for Targeting Employment Services: The International Experience	39
	Chris Hasluck
	1. Introduction	39
	2. The Market for Employment Services	40
	3. Allocation Mechanisms for Public Employment Services	41
	4. Customer Differentiation and Targeting in Public Employment Services	42
	4.1. Eligibility and Other Administrative Rules	42
	4.2. Personal Advisers and Discretion	43
	4.3. Screening	44
	5. Statistically Assisted Targeting and Profiling	44
	6. Statistical Profiling and Targeting in Practice	46
	6.1. Worker Profiling in the US	46
	6.2. Job Seeker Classification in Australia	47
	6.3. Service Allocation in Canada	48
	6.4. Profiling the Unemployed in Other Countries	48
	7. How Effective is Profiling and Targeting?	49
	7.1. Evaluation Issues	49
	7.2. Evidence from Countries with Profiling Systems	50
	7.3. Simulations of Profiling	51
	8. Conclusions	53
	References	54
Chapter 4	Governance and Labour Market Policy Models in Europe: A General Overview with a Survey of Public Employment Services	57
	Germana Di Domenico and Claudia Gasparini
	1. Government versus Governance: Implications at

Employment Service Level. Scenarios and Cluster Analysis of National Systems	57
2. Focus and Caseloads: Examples of Good Governance	65
2.1. Flexicurity: The Danish System	66
2.2. Employment Zones in the United Kingdom	67
2.3. The Decentralized Network of Employment Services in Italy	68
3. Concluding Remarks	69
References	71
Chapter 5 Performance Management and Measurement Techniques as New Challenges for Employment Services in Europe	73
Germana Di Domenico and Marco Meneguzzo
1. A Comparative Overview of European Public Employment Services: Main Findings from an International Analysis	73
2. The Trend Towards Modernization and Quality: Basics for a Public Governance Paradigm	77
3. Public Employment Services as Social Network Incubators and Spin-Offs	80
4. Future Challenges	84
References	86
Chapter 6 Service Management and Personnel Behaviour in Employment Services: Some Remarks about Approaches to Service Quality in European Countries	89
Pier Giovanni Bresciani
1. Recent Challenges for ‘New Organizational Behaviour’ in European Public Employment Services	89
2. Service Management and Quality	90
3. Examples in the EU context	92
Part II: National Experiences of Public Employment Services	95
Chapter 7 National Approaches to the Long-Term Unemployed as a Target Addressed by Public Employment Services: General Framework, Case Studies and Significant European Experiences	97
Germana Di Domenico and Claudia Gasparini
1. Unemployment and Globalization: The Role of Labour Market Institutions and Regulatory Competition	97
2. Public Employment Services: Coping with Long-Term Unemployment	99

Table of Contents

3. Marketing of Employment Services and New Forms of Outsourcing/Contracting-Out	104
3.1. Contracting-In	105
3.2. Contracting-Out	105
3.3. Client Contracts and Jobseeker Profiling	107
4. National Responses to Long-Term Unemployment: A Cluster Analysis	111
References	112
Chapter 8 The Jobcentre Plus Business and Customer Strategy Team in the United Kingdom	115
Eamonn Davern
1. Introduction and Context for the United Kingdom (UK) Change Agenda	115
1.1. Ageing Society	115
1.2. 80 Per Cent Employment Aspiration	116
1.3. Activation Policies	116
1.4. Structural Changes to UK Public Employment Services (PES)	116
2. The Job Outcome Target (JOT)	117
2.1. Previous Job Entry Target Performance Measurement System	117
2.2. Priority Groups	117
2.3. Jobcentre Plus Objectives	118
2.4. Drivers for Change	118
2.5. Requirement to Revise the JET System	118
2.6. Job Outcome Target Pilots	119
2.7. JOT Qualitative Research Objectives	119
2.8. Findings from JOT Qualitative Research	120
2.9. Recommendations from JOT Qualitative Research	121
2.10. JOT Quantitative Research Objectives	121
2.11. Findings from JOT Quantitative Research	122
2.12. Overall JOT Research Conclusions	123
3. National JOT Roll-Out	124
3.1. Recommendations to Ministers	124
3.2. Further Analysis	124
References	124
Chapter 9 The Operational Use of Evaluation Results in the Restructured German Public Employment Services	127
Regina Konle-Seidl and Torben Schewe
1. Introduction	127
2. Re-Organization of Employment Services	128
3. Profiling and Targeting as Preventive Measures for

Long-Term Unemployment	129
3.1. Profiling as a Diagnostic and Steering Tool	129
3.2. Targeting: Efficient Allocation of Jobseekers to Programmes	130
3.2.1. TrEffeR: A Tool for Better Targeting	130
4. Preliminary Results	132
5. Impact of Internal Re-Organization on the Prevention of Long-Term Unemployment	134
References	135

Chapter 10 Finnish Public Employment Service Reform:

The Network Model	137
Robert Arnkil
1. Key Features of the Finnish Context	137
1.1. Some Elements of a Virtuous Circle	137
1.2. Overshadowed by Some Factors	138
2. Public Employment Service Reform in Finland	140
2.1. Introduction	140
2.2. First Wave of Reform: Internal Rationalization	141
2.3. Second Wave of Reform: The Network Model	142
2.3.1. Influences and Building Blocks	142
2.3.1.1. The Swedish ‘Dual Strategy’	142
2.3.1.2. The Danish ‘Regional Strategy’	143
2.3.1.3. The UK ‘Work First – Customer Focus Strategy’	144
2.3.1.4. The Dutch ‘Gateway Strategy’	144
2.3.2. Designing the Second Wave of Reform in Finland	145
2.3.2.1. The First Strand: Addressing Customers with Multiple Problems and Building Intermediate Labour Markets	146
2.3.2.2. The Second Strand: Reforming Employment Offices to be Better Geared to the Open Labour Markets and Demand	148
2.3.2.3. Third Strand: Sustainable Development of Workplaces	150
3. Debate and Future of the Reform	151
3.1. Possibilities, Challenges and Pitfalls	151
3.2. Summary	153
3.3. Ongoing Evaluation of the Reform	154
References	154

Chapter 11 Public Services for the Long-Term Unemployed in Spain: Innovation or Compliance?	157
Xavier Ballart
1. Introduction	157
2. Employment Policies: Active and Passive	158
3. Analysis	160
3.1. The Position of the Long-Term Unemployed in the Agenda	161
3.2. Positive Developments	162
3.3. Areas that Need Improvement	163
3.4. Need to Revise Underlying Theories	163
4. Conclusion	165
References	166
Chapter 12 Long-Term Unemployment in Poland	167
Mirosław Włodarczyk
1. The Definition of Long-Term Unemployment in Poland	167
2. Economic and Social Conditioning of Long-Term Unemployment	168
3. Development of Legal Regulation	169
4. Legal Measures for Counteracting Long-Term Unemployment	171
4.1. Main Forms for Counteracting Long-Term Unemployment	171
4.2. Other Forms for Counteracting Long-Term Unemployment	173
4.3. Long-Term Unemployment and Social Exclusion	174
4.4. Long-Term Unemployment and Unemployment Benefits	175
4.5. Public Expenses and Long-Term Unemployment	175
5. Prospects for Limiting Long-Term Unemployment in Poland	176
References	177
Part III: The Long-Term Unemployed Target for Public Employment Services: Focus on Italy	179
Chapter 13 The Long-Term Unemployed Target for Public Employment Services: Evidence from Isfol Surveys	181
Germana Di Domenico
1. General Institutional and Socio-Economic Framework	181
2. The Critical Mass of Long-Term Unemployed for the Public Employment Services	187

3. Long-Term Unemployment as a 'Cross-Sectional' Target: Significant Experiences	190
3.1. Case Studies from Local Job Centres	196
3.2. The Long-Term Unemployed Target in the Public-Private Partnership and Perception. Main Findings from Job Centre Sample Survey and Monitoring of Private Employment Agencies	197
4. Conclusions and Open Issues	200
References	202

Chapter 14 Employment Incentive Measures Geared to the Long-Term Unemployed in Italy	203
Salvatore Pirrone
1. The Italian System of Active Policies in the European Framework	203
2. Long-Term Unemployed Recruitment Incentives: A General Overview	205
3. Some Quantitative Elements	207
4. Long-Term Unemployed Incentives Promoting Initial Access to the Labour Market	209
5. Eligibility Requirements and Previous Status of Beneficiaries	211
6. Employment Outcomes	213
7. Final Remarks	213
References	214

Chapter 15 The Unemployed and the Public Employment Services: The Veneto Scenario	215
Bruno Anastasia and Giorgio Gardonio
1. Introduction	215
2. Unemployment in Veneto in the ISTAT Labour Force Survey	216
3. The Unemployed According to Job Centre Registrations	217
3.1. Differences between ISTAT and the Veneto Employment Information System: Some Methodological Notes	217
3.2. Veneto Employment Information System Data: Unemployed Willing to Work up to 30 June 2006	219
3.3. Administrative Flows: Unemployment Inflows and Outflows	221
4. Services Activated by Public Employment Services: Types of Intervention and Characteristics of the Beneficiaries	224

Table of Contents

5. Concluding Remarks	230
References	230
Chapter 16 Active Measures for Employability and New Forms of Security: The Italian Case	233
Michele Tiraboschi
1. The Italian Labour Law Tradition: Protection for those who are Protected	233
2. Workfare: The Transition from Passive Policies to Promotion and Prevention	236
3. Economic and Normative Incentives	239
4. Merits and Limits of the Treu Measures	240
4.1. The Biagi Law: (a) Implementing the European Employment Strategy in Italy	241
4.2. The Biagi Law: (b) Constructing a Modern Network of Employment Services	243
5. The Completion of the Biagi Law With the Reform of Safety-Net Measures	246
6. Social Expenditure and the Tax and Contributions Burden on Employment	248
7. The Final Project for New Forms of Security: The Work Statute	249
References	249
Index	251