

CONSTITUTION

Freedom and Technological Change

3.0

Jeffrey Rosen
Benjamin Wittes
EDITORS

BROOKINGS INSTITUTION PRESS
Washington, D.C.

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
1 INTRODUCTION
Technological Change and the Constitutional Future	1
Jeffrey Rosen
PART ONE
THE FUTURE OF SURVEILLANCE
2 Is the Fourth Amendment Relevant in a Technological Age?	11
Christopher Slobogin
3 Use Restrictions and the Future of Surveillance Law	37
Orin S. Kerr
4 Cyberthreat, Government Network Operations, and the Fourth Amendment	47
Jack Goldsmith
PART TWO
THE FUTURE OF FREE EXPRESSION AND PRIVACY
5 The Deciders: Facebook, Google, and the Future of Privacy and Free Speech	69
Jeffrey Rosen

- 6 Is Filtering Censorship? The Second Free Speech Tradition 83
Tim Wu
- 7 A Mutual Aid Treaty for the Internet 100
Jonathan Zittrain

PART THREE

THE FUTURE OF NEUROLAW

- 8 Neuroscience and the Future of Personhood
and Responsibility 113
Stephen J. Morse
- 9 Cognitive Neuroscience and the Future of Punishment 130
O. Carter Snead

PART FOUR

GENETIC ENGINEERING AND

THE FUTURE OF CONSTITUTIONAL PERSONHOOD

- 10 Reproductive Rights and Reproductive Technology in 2030 155
John A. Robertson
- 11 The Problems and Possibilities of Modern Genetics:
A Paradigm for Social, Ethical, and Political Analysis 177
Eric Cohen and Robert P. George
- 12 Endowed by Their Creator?
The Future of Constitutional Personhood 194
James Boyle
- 13 Innovation's Darker Future: Biosecurity, Technologies
of Mass Empowerment, and the Constitution 214
Benjamin Wittes
- 14 EPILOGUE
Translating and Transforming the Future 243
Lawrence Lessig

Contributors 255

Index 261