

The Convention on the Rights of the Child

A Cultural Legitimacy Critique

Thoko Kaime

CONTENTS

	Preface	v
	Acknowledgements	vii
	Contents	ix
CHAPTER 1	Introduction
1	Background	3
2	Focus of the Book	6
3	General Approach	6
4	Significance	7
5	Scope	8
CHAPTER 2	The Birth and Development of Children's Rights
1	Introduction	13
2	The Structural Basis of Children's Rights at International Law	13
3	Universal Rights and the Struggle for Context	18
4	Documents Affecting Children's Rights: An African Example	22
5	Emerging Questions	26
CHAPTER 3	Relativist and Universalist Debates
1	Introduction	29
2	The Concept of Culture and its Relevance for Children's Rights	30
3	Cultural Legitimacy and its Relevance for Children's Rights	34
4	Relativism, Universalism and Children's Rights	37
4.1	Cultural Relativism and the Relevance of Cultural Context	39
4.2	Universalism and Human Rights	42
4.3	Mediating Between Universalism and Relativism	46
5	The Implications of the Debate for Children's Rights	49
CHAPTER 4	Mapping Childhood and Children's Rights
1	Introduction	55
2	The Concept of Children's Rights	55
3	The Concept of Childhood	60
3.1	The Changing Nature of childhood	65
3.2	The Conception of Childhood: An African Example	68
4	The Relationship Between Childhood and Children's Rights	72
4.1	The Image of Childhood at International Law	73

4.2	Children's Rights and the Dominant Image of Childhood	74
4.3	Obstacles to the Export of the Dominant Conceptions of Childhood	77
4.4	The CRC and the Changing Image of Childhood	80
4.5	A New Image of Childhood?	83
5	Concluding Remarks	85
CHAPTER 5	Principles of General Application
1	Introduction	89
2	The General Principles and Cultural Context: The Basis for an Ethnographic Approach	90
3	Non-discrimination: Concepts, Context and Contests	93
3.1	Maybe Not Good but Justifiable: Analysing the Pro-Distinction Narratives	96
3.2	It is Not Part of Our Culture: An Inquiry into Non-Discrimination Discourse	101
4	Best Interests: Tracing the Contours of a Shadow-Less Concept	104
4.1	Lost in Translation? Conceptualising Best Interests	107
4.2	The Child's Best Interests in Family Decision-Making	109
5	Survival and Development and the Interrelatedness of Children's Rights	112
5.1	Children's Survival and Development: Partnerships and Resource Networks	115
6	Participation: A Brief Introduction	122
6.1	Adaptation and Resistance: A Tale of Rudeness and Freedom	126
7	Concluding Remarks: Children's Rights in Cultural Practice	129
CHAPTER 6	Cultural Legitimacy and the Implementation of Children's Rights: Institutions and Process
1	Introduction	135
2	The Formal Protection of Children's Rights	136
3	The Scope and Efficacy of the Legal Protection of Children's Rights and the Prospects for Cultural Legitimacy	137
4	From the Legal to the Local: Local Institutions and the Cultural Legitimacy of Children's Rights	141
4.1	Key Local Institutions in Lomwe Country	141
4.2	The Clan	141
4.3	The Chief's Court	142
4.4	The Boma or the District Commissioner's Office	143
4.5	The Church	144

CONTENTS

5	Local Institutions and the Potential for Children's Rights Protection	145
6	Incorporating Local Institutions in the Implementation of Children's Rights: Process and Prospects	151
7	Concluding Remarks	153
CHAPTER 7	Concluding Analysis
1	Introduction	157
2	Culture, Rights, the CRC and the Omnipresence of Change	158
3	Cultural Legitimacy and the CRC	163
4	Cultural Appropriation and the CRC	165
5	The CRC in Practice	166
5.1	Dissemination	167
5.2	Collaboration	169
5.3	Participation	171
5.4	Innovation	172
6	Concluding Remarks	173
	Convention on the Rights of the Child	176
	Bibliography	196
	Table of Cases	214