The Delicate Balance

Tax, Discretion and the Rule of Law

Editors

Chris Evans
Australian School of Taxation and Business Law, University of New South Wales;
International Fellow, Centre for Business Taxation
Oxford University

Judith Freedman
Professor of Taxation Law, Faculty of Law;
Director of Legal Research,
Centre for Business Taxation
Oxford University

Richard Krever
Taxation Law and Policy Research Institute,
Department of Business Law and Taxation,
Monash University;
International Fellow, Centre for Business Taxation
Oxford University
Table of Contents

Preface v

Tax, Discretion and the Rule of Law 1
Dominic de Cogan

1. Background 1
2. Defining “discretion” 2
3. Discretion and legal systems 4
   3.1. The source of discretion 4
   3.2. The exercise of discretion 5
   3.3. Tax discretions compared 7
      3.3.1. Judicial review 7
      3.3.2. Binding the tax authority 8
      3.3.3. Binding the taxpayer 9
      3.3.4. Trust 10
      3.3.5. Institutions 11
4. Critique and reform 12
   4.1. The source of discretion 12
   4.2. The exercise of discretion 13
   4.3. Reform 13
5. Conclusion 14

The Delicate Balance: Revenue Authority Discretions and the Rule of Law – Some Thoughts in a Legal Theory and Comparative Perspective 15
Ana Paula Dourado

1. Introductory remarks: is discretion exercised by the revenue authorities? 15
2. The rule of law 16
   2.1. The legal type of tax 16
   2.2. Validity and legitimacy 16
   2.3. The rule of law and parliamentary laws 18
3. Legal determinacy and creation vs. application 20
4. The framework for delegations to the government and to the revenue authorities 24
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5. Delegation to the government</td>
<td>25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6. Vagueness and indeterminacy in tax law</td>
<td>27</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7. Legal techniques and the rule of law: Tax law between &quot;typifying&quot; and vagueness</td>
<td>29</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8. The meaning of revenue authority discretions</td>
<td>30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9. Common law vs. civil law countries</td>
<td>31</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10. Administrative and judicial typifying</td>
<td>33</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11. Conclusions</td>
<td>34</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Promise and the Reality of U.S. Tax Administration

Kristin E. Hickman

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. The U.S. delegation compromise</td>
<td>42</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Tax administration deviations</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.1. Temporary Treasury regulations</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.2. Guidance documents</td>
<td>53</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.3. Limited judicial review</td>
<td>55</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. The implications of imbalance</td>
<td>57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. Conclusion</td>
<td>62</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

A Reasonable Balance: Revenue Authority Discretions and the Rule of Law in Canada

Kim Brooks

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. Canada’s porous separation of powers</td>
<td>63</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. The three branches in theory</td>
<td>64</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.1. The legislative branch</td>
<td>64</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.2. The executive branch</td>
<td>65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.3. The judicial branch</td>
<td>68</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. The good sense of blurring the three functions in practice</td>
<td>69</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. A reasonable balance in action: the taxation of in-kind benefits</td>
<td>74</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. An appropriate allocation of discretion</td>
<td>77</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
HMRC’s Management of the U.K. Tax System:
The Boundaries of Legitimate Discretion
Judith Freedman and John Vella

1. The revenue authority’s discretion and its limits
1.1. Constitutional principles
1.2. Discretionary powers of the U.K. revenue authority
1.3. Secondary legislation
1.4. Control of discretion
1.4.1. Courts
1.4.2. Parliament
1.4.3. Internal procedure and other bodies
1.5. Chapter outline

2. Constitutional limits on HMRC discretion
2.1. The framework dictated by the supremacy of Parliament principle
2.2. The principle of legality
2.3. Remaining constitutional principles
2.3.1. Article 4 of the Bill of Rights Act 1689
2.3.2. The rule of law
2.3.3. Human Rights Act 1998
2.3.4. EU law

3. Judicial review and HMRC discretion
3.1. Legitimate expectations
3.1.1. The limits of the legitimate expectation principle
3.1.2. The limits of guidance
3.1.3. The value of the legitimate expectations doctrine in controlling revenue discretion

4. HMRC’s general discretion: categories and issues
4.1. Category A: Discretion as to non-application of the law where its proper interpretation is agreed
4.1.1. Extra-statutory concessions
4.1.2. Waivers and deals
4.2. Category B: Discretion as to how to interpret the law
   4.2.1. Statements of Practice, guidance and manuals 112
   4.2.2. Clearances 114
4.3. Category C: Discretion in management of legislation and litigation 115
4.4. Category D: Hybrids of the above categories 116
5. Conclusion

The Delicate Balance: Revenue Authority Discretions and the Rule of Law in Australia
Michael Walpole and Chris Evans

1. Introduction 121
2. An expression of the rule of law 123
3. The Commissioner's powers 127
   3.1. Formal administrative powers 127
   3.2. Powers of interpretation 128
   3.3. Discretionary powers 129
      3.3.1. Liability discretions 130
      3.3.2. Administrative discretions 131
      3.3.3. Anti-avoidance discretions 132
4. The Commissioner and the courts 133
5. Principle-based drafting 138
6. Extra-statutory concessions 142
   6.1. Background 142
   6.2. The Tax Design Review Panel 142
   6.3. The Treasury Discussion Paper 143
   6.4. Responses to the Treasury Discussion Paper 145
7. Conclusions 147

Revenue Authority Discretions and the Rule of Law in New Zealand
Shelley Griffiths

1. Introduction 149
2. Discretions and the rule of law – the New Zealand context 150
Table of Contents

3. Discretion in the Income Tax Act 152
4. Discretion in tax administration 155
   4.1. The managerial discretion of the New Zealand Commissioner of Inland Revenue, sections 6 and 6A of the Tax Administration Act 1994 156
   4.2. Settlement 162
   4.3. Reassessment 168
5. Conclusion 170

Appendix 1: Tax Administration Act 1994 (N.Z.), ss. 6 and 6A 172

---

Revenue Authority Discretions and the Rule of Law: South Africa 175
Ernest Mazansky

1. Introduction 175
2. Constitutional background 175
3. Levying of tax 177
4. The South African Revenue Service 178
5. Concept of the rule of law 179
6. Discretionary powers 181
7. Safeguards for taxpayers 184
8. Objection and appeal procedures in the tax laws 185
9. Discretions 186
10. Delegated rule-making powers 187
11. Interpretation notes and guides 188
12. Binding rulings 189
13. Extra-statutory concessions 190
14. Trends towards strengthening the rule of law in taxation matters 190
15. Some general observations 191
16. Some practical aspects 192
   16.1. Write-off of tax debts 192
   16.2. Settling a dispute 194
   16.3. Tax controversy 195
   16.4. Advance rulings 196
17. Concluding remarks 199
Table of Contents

Revenue Authority Discretions and the Rule of Law in Hong Kong

Andrew Halkyard

1. Background and history of income tax in Hong Kong 203
2. The constitutional position in relation to the imposition of taxation in Hong Kong 204
3. Taxation legislation in Hong Kong and the role of discretion 205
4. Administration of tax law in Hong Kong – co-operation or confrontation? 210
5. Commitment to service and the Taxpayers' Charter 211
6. Extra-statutory concessions – their status and authority 213
7. The pervasiveness and importance of published departmental practice 215
8. Conclusions 216

Appendix 1

221

Balancing of Powers in Dutch Tax Law: General Overview and Recent Developments

Richard Happé and Melvin Pauwels

1. Introduction 223
2. Some important characteristics of Dutch constitutional practice
   2.1. Limited power of judiciary to test Acts of Parliament 224
   2.2. The central role and “two hats” of the State Secretary of Finance 225
   2.3. Traditional discretionary power of the tax administration 228
3. Balancing of legislative and judicial power
   3.1. Introduction 228
   3.2. The judiciary’s testing of Acts of Parliament for compatibility with the principle of equality 229
   3.3. Overruling of case law by the legislature 231
4. Balancing of executive and judicial power
   4.1. Introduction 233
   4.2. More procedural room for the tax administration 234
   4.3. The phenomenon of “enforcement covenants” 234
5. Balancing of legislative and executive power
   5.1. Introduction 237
5.2. Shift of power from legislature to executive 237
5.2.1. Simplicity of legislation 238
5.2.2. Rule-making by the executive 239
5.2.3. Discretionary power 240
5.3. Countervailing balance by the judiciary? 241

6. The judiciary's response to the discretionary power of the tax administration when applying tax legislation 245
6.1. Introduction 245
6.2. Potential issues 246
6.3. Applying principles of proper government behaviour by the judiciary: Priority rules 247
6.4. Conclusion 248

7. Conclusion 249
7.1. General framework 249
7.2. Legislative power vs. judicial power 250
7.3. Executive power vs. judicial power 251
7.4. Legislative power vs. executive power 252

The Delicate Balance between Revenue Authority Discretions and the Rule of Law in France 255
Christophe Grandcolas

1. Introduction 255
2. Current situation 260
   2.1. Main types of advance binding rulings issued by the tax authorities 261
   2.2. Procedures to request and issue advance rulings 266
      2.2.1. Procedure to submit applications 266
      2.2.2. Responses 269
   2.3. Results 272
3. Main issues 278
   3.1. Are rulings procedures in line with the French Constitution? 278
   3.2. Rulings issued by an independent body or by tax authorities? 279
   3.3. Can the self-assessment procedure be "dissolved" in a system of advance rulings? Back to the "good old times"? 283
   3.4. Decentralization or centralization of decisions? 284
      3.4.1. Consistency, objectivity, and harmonization issues 284
      3.4.2. Central unit 285
Table of Contents

3.5. Are advance rulings and tax audits compatible? 285
  3.5.1. Field audits and non-disclosure of private advance rulings 285
  3.5.2. Default answers and juridical security 286
  3.5.3. On-demand audit: a risky certainty? 286
  3.5.4. How to easily transform a tax audit into a binding ruling? 287

3.6. A hidden tax law? Advance rulings and level playing field issues 287
  3.6.1. Very limited number of published rulings 288
  3.6.2. Certainty and equity issues 288

3.7. Is the procedure cumbersome and costly? 289

Revenue Authority Discretions and the Rule of Law: The Quest for a Recta Ratio 291
Marco Greggi

1. A history of balances (and many imbalances) 291
2. The Italian judicial system on the verge of collapse, and the remedies adopted 295
4. Some explanatory notes (continued): ... and which discretion? 302
5. The case of the “tax heaven” definition 307
6. Limiting the discretionary power? The role of supranational sources of law (the EU and human rights from a European perspective), and OECD guidelines 311
7. The rule of law revisited and a tale from the Old Millennium: The Emperor’s rescripta in Roman law as recta ratio? 317

Tax Discretion in Hungary 319
Borbála Kolozs and Richard Krever

1. The scope of “tax discretions” in Hungary 319
2. The delegation of law-making power to the executive 322
3. Interpretation or the exercise of law-making discretion? 325