A SIAMESE TRAGEDY
Development and Disintegration in Modern Thailand

WALDEN BELLO, SHEA CUNNINGHAM
AND LI KHENG POH

Food First
OAKLAND, CA

White Lotus
BANGKOK

Zed Books Ltd
LONDON & NEW YORK
Contents

List of Tables and Figures viii
Acknowledgements ix
Foreword xii
Abbreviations xiii

1 Introduction: Survey of an Economic Débâcle 1
A second Ayuthaya? /1 High flyers laid low /2
The effect on the real economy /3 Twilight zone /4
The culture of conspicuous consumption /5
The Thai path to development /6 Globalization of the Thai economy /7
Royal doubts /8

2 Back to the Third World 10
The political economy of NIChood /10 Import substitution industrialization /10 Export-oriented industrialization /12 The private sector and the state /13
The Japanese Tsunami /16 Attracting portfolio investment and bank capital /18 The deluge /20
Financiers and realtors: Bonnie and Clyde in Bangkok /23
The real estate bust /25 Playing pretend /28
Finance One: the crisis in microcosm /29 Botched rescue /31 The panic /32 The financial crisis and the structural crisis /36

3 Thailand under the IMF 43
A cosy relationship /43 The Chaovalit government hesitates /46 Chuan in the breach /47 Critique of the stabilization programme /49 Why engineer a recession? /49
The 'moral hazard' issue /50 Advancing the US agenda /50 Reform or collapse? /52

4 The Failure of Industrial Deepening 55
The education bottleneck /56 The R&D fiasco /57
Foreign investment and technology transfer: electronics /60
Foreign investment and technology transfer: the car industry /61
Thailand as Japan’s technological dependency /63 The financial crisis and foreign investment trends /69 Conclusion /70

5 Labour and Capital
Emergence of the industrial working class /74 Organizing labour /74 Labour in the boom years /78 Working women /81 Hazards at work /83 Squeezing labour for international competitiveness /86 Child labour and migrant labour /88 Losing strategy /90 Economic collapse and class conflict /91

6 Bangkok: Vicissitudes of a Megalopolis Prime among primates /95 Los Angelizing the ‘city of the angels’ /97 Disneyland east: the mass transit chaos /99
Citizens versus mass transit /101 Land management:
unleashing the private sector /105 Klong Toey: rallying point for the urban poor /110

7 Pollution Haven
Foreign investment and pollution /116 Forms of pollution /118 Crisis of regulation /126

8 The Erosion of Agriculture
The two faces of the Thai countryside /133 Subordinating the countryside to the city /135 Commercialization and agrarian crisis up to the 1970s /138 Social struggle, reform, and peasant defeat /147 Containing the countryside after 1976 /151 Aborted ‘NAICdom’: Thai agriculture in the late 1980s /160 Down the road of NIC agriculture? /167
Thai agriculture in the eye of the storm /168

9 The Dynamics of Deforestation
Deforesting the north /176 The battle for the highlands /179 Ecological crisis in the northeast /183 Disaster in the south /187 Government: part of the problem? /191
Conflicting property systems /191 Lack of political will /192
The forest village and STK programmes /193 Reforestation and resettlement /194 The Thai Forestry Sector Master Plan /197 The Forest Conservation Development
Project /199 The Community Forest Bill /201
CONTENTS

10 Damming the Countryside

- EGAT begets resistance /206
- The problem with dams ... /208
- The Pak Mun face-off /211
- Regionalization of Thailand’s environmental crisis /214
- The financial crisis and the environment /217

11 The AIDS Crisis

- AIDS in Asia /223
- AIDS in Thailand /223
- Poverty, labour migration, and AIDS /224
- AIDS and the sex industry /226
- The economic impact of AIDS /234
- Battling AIDS: the scorecard /235
- Conclusion /238

12 Conclusion: Revisioning the Future

- Emergence and dynamics of the NGO movement /243
- Critique of the system /245
- Fleshing out the alternative /247

Selected Readings

Index